Faculty Symposium

University System of Georgia

Hosted by

Infusing Japan into the undergraduate curriculum

Few countries captivate the imagination like Japan, its juxtaposition of traditional and modern at every turn. Some have written off the world's third largest economy, prematurely though. This nation that modernized faster than any in history, while maintaining deep-rooted traditions, has reinvented itself more than once. Students love studying about Japan, so join the Asia Council to learn more about incorporating Japan studies into the core curriculum.
