Leading a Diverse Workforce

Tuesday, July 22 from 9 AM-12 PM

Valdosta State University— University Center Rose Room

During this course you will explore how as a leader you can empower people through understanding, valuing and capitalizing on all the strengths of each individual to enhance teamwork and increase effectiveness as a department and organization. Diversity is what builds teams — a collection of individual experiences, backgrounds, and cultures that can view problems and challenges from a wide-variety of lenses.

This course offers management certification.

Pre-requisite: Participants should have attended a general diversity workshop within the last three years.

Learning Objectives:

- Attain a deeper knowledge of what diversity is, and how and why its management is relevant to the good performance of individuals, groups and organizations
- Identify as a leader your own personal impact for enhancing and promoting inclusion in the workplace
- Apply strategies to foster a positive work environment

Instructors received diversity training through the National Multicultural Institute.
