

SECTION 804.15

Safety.

Employees should make every effort to form safe working habits for themselves and to create a safe work environment for those around them. Too often, safety is thought of only in terms of the Plant Operations area, and this attitude alone can prove dangerous. Every year cabinet drawers left open, electrical cords strung across walkways to be tripped over, etc. are reported to the National Safety Council from across the country. Understandably, the probability of accidents occurring is greater among plant workers, but we all should make a conscious effort to make our campus as accident-free as possible.

Employees should use all required safety equipment when performing their duties, observe area work rules, and report all hazardous conditions to their supervisors upon detection.

Upon employment, the Division of Environmental Health and Safety will advise employees of hazardous materials, etc. in accordance with the Right to Know laws and other appropriate federal legislation.
