Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action Statements

Equal Opportunity

Valdosta State University is an equal opportunity educational institution. It is not the intent of the institution to discriminate against any applicant for admission, or any student or employee of the institution based on the sex, race, religion, color, national origin, disability, or sexual orientation of the individual. It is the intent of the institution to comply with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and subsequent Executive Orders as well as Title IX, Equal Pay Act of 1963, Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973.

Affirmative Action

The Americans with Disabilities Act, Public Law 101-336, extends the prohibition against discrimination on the basis of disability in Section 504 to all programs, activities, and services provided or made available by state and local governments, regardless of whether those entities receive federal financial assistance. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 states that no otherwise qualified disabled individual can be denied access to or participation in any federally funded activity or program solely on the basis of disability.

About This Handbook

Graduate school represents a new educational experience where you are faced with a large quantity of complex information. The MFT Program Handbook serves as a resource to help guide you through this experience. It is written for the students and faculty who, along with clients, bring life to the clinic. It describes the details of the daily operations of the clinic, delineates the policies and procedures to which all who use the clinic adhere, and it describes expectations from the point of admission to degree completion. You are responsible for familiarizing yourself with the contents of this Handbook. Access is available as an electronic pdf version on the program's website and server.

The manual is organized to provide quick and easy access to most operational aspects of the MFT Program and FamilyWorks. It attempts to provide answers to the questions that students and faculty may have as they work in the clinic. Nonetheless, unique situations pertaining to internships, clinic operations, or clinical situations may arise that are not addressed in this manual. In such situations, the Clinical Coordinator and other MFT faculty are able to answer questions concerning practicum, internship, or clinic operations.

If you notice that this manual is missing something that would be helpful to students, please inform me. While a formal and comprehensive review and revision of the handbook occurs every three years, students' insightful and useful comments are often the impetus of frequent "as necessary" revisions that occur year-round.

I encourage you to refer to it whenever you have questions about clinic procedure or program policy. I hope your time at FamilyWorks is rewarding and full of good learning.

About the MFT Program and Faculty

Welcome to the MFT Program and FamilyWorks at Valdosta State University. FamilyWorks is the university-based family therapy clinic for the Marriage and Family Therapy Program. The clinic officially opened its doors as the Moore Street Clinic in the spring of 2000, changing the name to FamilyWorks in the summer of 2011, when the program, clinic, and faculty offices took up new residence, all under the same roof on the corner of Patterson and Gordon Streets. Since its inception, the clinic has had a two-pronged purpose: (1.) to operate as the primary clinical training facility for students in the MFT graduate program and (2.) to provide family therapy services to individuals, couples, and families in Lowndes county and surrounding areas and the VSU campus.

Getting Started at FamilyWorks

Therapeutic services at FamilyWorks are provided primarily by student therapists currently enrolled in Practicum, MFTH 7600 or Internship, MFTH 7980 and under faculty supervision. Student therapists must have the permission of a faculty supervisor—usually the student’s first practicum instructor—before they can see clients in the clinic on their own (outside of the practicum setting). When a faculty supervisor deems a student ready to see clients on his or her own, the supervisor will notify (verbally or by email) the Clinical Coordinator. The Clinical Coordinator will place the student on the rotation list.

FamilyWorks Definition of Family

FamilyWorks holds an inclusive definition of family and couple, providing services to a variety of family configurations including but not limited to single-parent families, same-sex parent families, and any group of people who define themselves as a family though not related by blood or legal ties. Services are provided regardless of sex, race, religion, sexual orientation, color, political affiliation, national origin, income level, or mental or physical disability.

Professional Liability Insurance

All faculty and students must have liability insurance coverage. At the beginning of every semester, faculty supervisors will be responsible for ensuring that each of their practicum students has a professional liability insurance policy and has submitted proof of his or her coverage to the Clinical Coordinator. During the start of Fall semester each year, incoming students are instructed on how to purchase AAMFT student membership, through which they get liability insurance.

Safety and Security

While Valdosta is considered by many to be safer than many major metropolises, students are urged to “think safety.” If working alone in the clinic, particularly after hours, students are advised to lock themselves in. If, for some reason, you feel unsafe moving from building to car late at night, you are encouraged to call VSU Public Safety (7816) and request an escort to your car.

The VSU Police Department patrols the VSU campus and at night checks all buildings to make sure that they are locked. If you have an emergency, call 5555 from any clinic or VSU phone.

Hours of Operation and Clinic Coverage

Students have unrestricted access to the clinic via their student ID card (which acts as a 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year slider-key), including semester breaks and university-scheduled holiday closings. In this way, therapeutic services can continue irrespective of weekends, university breaks, and holidays.

Phone Coverage

Clinically active therapists and Shift Managers enrolled in the Marriage and Family Therapy Program, make it possible for the FamilyWorks phone to be answered by a person, for most business hours. There are times, occasionally, when the intake office is not occupied. The next available shift worker will check any messages left during that time and follow-up.

Accessing FamilyWorks with Your 1Card

To have access to FamilyWorks, you must acquire a student ID card from the 1Card service office, located at 1205 N. Patterson Street, University Center (UC). Once you have successfully obtained your student ID, send the Clinical Coordinator your student ID number (870 number). The Clinical Coordinator will ensure each student has electronic access. Once you have been approved for access, you will be assigned a PIN number that you will enter on the keypad after you swipe your card. To view your PIN, select View Personal Pin from the Student Services & Financial Aid tab in Banner.

Business Cards

All students will utilize standard FamilyWorks business cards during their time in this program. During the first year, students will be doing service learning, some of which involve handing out business cards. When students reach their clinical year, they will be using business/appointment cards for a variety of reasons, such as giving them to clients so that they know the date and time of their next appointment. All student cards look the same. On the front, each card shows the clinic name, address, phone, and fax. On the back are blank slots for your clients' names, date, and time of next appointment

Mailbox Folders

All MFT students are given a physical mail folder, located in the GA workroom. Each therapist should check his or her box with consistent regularity.

Opening & Closing FamilyWorks

Once inside FamilyWorks, students gain access to the intake office, all therapy and observations rooms, graduate assistant offices, and the clinic filing room via a key kept inside a realtor's lock box that hangs by the door to the back patio. Most times during the week—except during holidays and university-scheduled break—a graduate assistant or Shift Manager staffs the main FamilyWorks phone during business hours, taking intake and referral calls. During the remaining hours of the week, clients leave messages on the machine, and a GA/shift manager responds to them within 24 hours. Georgia State licensed, AAMFT Approved faculty supervisors are available in person and always by phone when students need emergency advice or supervision. Between semesters, faculty supervisors are available for case consultation and supervision as arranged between faculty member and student.

Opening FamilyWorks

1. The university clock automatically unlocks the MFT doors at 7:00am. If you arrive before 7:00am, use your ID card in the slider box attached to the outside wall of the building facing the front entrance to get into the lobby.
2. Once inside the lobby, turn on the clinic lights using the switch by the front entrance.
3. Head to the mailroom hallway (across from the conference room and next to the student workroom) and open the lockbox using the access code.
4. Inside the lockbox, you'll find a key and an Allen wrench. Use the Allen wrench to unlock the back patio door, located in the same hallway.
5. The key unlocks the classroom, all therapy and observation rooms, the GA office, the conference room, and the intake office. Use it to unlock everything.
6. Tidy the lobby and therapy rooms as needed. Make sure blinds are down in the observation rooms and lights are turned off. Keep observation room doors closed but unlocked.
7. Return the key to the lockbox immediately after unlocking the rooms.
8. Enter the now-unlocked intake office, log in, and pull up the scheduling book and DML Template to begin your shift.

Closing FamilyWorks

If you are the last to leave the clinic—if there are no further sessions on the book for the rest of the day, if no therapists or clients remain in the clinic, if no one is coming in immediately behind you to do service learning—then do the following:

1. Tidy the front lobby (tidy up pillows, pick up toys, etc.).
2. Close and lock the GA office, intake office, and student workroom.
3. Turn off all lights and lamps in therapy rooms and lock the therapy room doors.
4. Turn off clinic lights using the switch near the front or back entrance.
5. Use the Allen wrench from the lockbox to lock the patio door.
6. Return the key and Allen wrench to the lockbox and scramble the code.
7. Exit through the back door, and double-check that it is fully locked. If for some reason it is not locked, you can lock it using the Allen wrench.

Note:

- The front door will automatically unlock each morning 7am and lock each night 7pm.
- You'll have 24/7 access to the clinic using the slider key, including weekends and hours outside the regular schedule.

Shift Management

Shift Management Procedures

- If you are the first shift manager of the day, please follow the procedures for opening FamilyWorks (see previous page).
- Log into the intake computer: You will use your active directory login information.
- Log into the FamilyWorks email account by doing the following:
  - Sign into your personal VSU email
  - Click on the person icon located of the far-right side
  - Click on “open other mailbox”
  - Type in "FamilyWorks"
- Check messages on telephone answering machine. NOTE: If clients are in the waiting room, shut the intake door before listening to messages.

Here is how to access telephone messages or view call history via telephone

- Press the “Messages” button on the phone and enter the code 1281#, to listen to recorded messages
- For call history: Select “Directories” (far right side of phone), which will prompt missed, received, and placed calls.
- With arrows in the middle of the phone, scroll down to click on the option you need.
- Push “select.” The phone numbers will show along with the date/ time the call came in.
- Be sure to call and email any therapists whose clients have left messages. Do not just save the message and hope that another person in the clinic will relay the message.
- Open the scheduling book and review any appointments for the day so that you know who you might be expecting to walk in the door while you are at the desk.
- Review the Shift Notes binder for any outstanding messages, items left unfinished from the previous shift manager, etc.
- Open the template for the Daily Message Log, which is on the A. MFT OneDrive. Download the DML from OneDrive. Do not enter it directly into the template.
- As your shift unfolds, track any intakes, messages, or other happenings in the DML. At the end of your shift, you will email a copy of the Daily Message log (paste directly in body of email, do not send as an attachment), and send the email to all students and faculty
- Because FamilyWorks is student-operated, many people do intakes and other paperwork from the intake office. For this reason, it is vital that we have ongoing and clear communication between a student leaving a shift and a student coming on to begin a shift.
- The point of the DML is to pass messages from one SM/GA to another; to track what is done and what remains undone. Thus, the first task of each new on-coming GA or SM arriving to do his or her stint is to tackle what is left over from the previous shift.
- The doors to FamilyWorks automatically lock at 7:30 PM Monday – Thursday and 3PM on Friday. If this is during your shift, and you are expecting clients, you must use the Allen wrench to unlock the door (see opening/closing FamilyWorks for more instructions). Insert the wrench into the small hole in the metal push-bar. While holding the push-bar down, turn the Allen wrench, which will disengage the lock

- When completing the Daily Message Log or emailing therapists, please be sure to not include any identifying information (i.e. only use the client's initials and do not include phone number).
- If you are the last shift manager of the day, please follow the procedures for closing FamilyWorks.

FamilyWorks Telephone System

The telephone lines running throughout FamilyWorks are part of the Valdosta State University telephone system. The main FamilyWorks number, the number used by the public and intake workers, is (229) 219-1281. This line is not to be tied up with personal or professional calls, including research projects.

Students are encouraged to use any of the other phones located in the student's breakroom, file room, or graduate assistant offices for their professional or research calls.

Google Voice

Phone calls to clients are typically made at the FamilyWorks Clinic. However, students may use the Google Voice app to contact clients for scheduling purposes only when away from the clinic. If you're unfamiliar with Google Voice, you can review this webpage.

If you choose to use Google Voice:

- Save client numbers using initials only in the Google Voice app
- Do not text clients under any circumstances
- Turn on "Do Not Disturb"
- In settings, select "Show my Google Voice number" when making calls
- Record a voicemail greeting that includes the following:
  - This number is not for emergencies or to discuss clinical matters
  - Clients should leave all messages with the FamilyWorks main line (229-219-1281)
  - Provide the 988 Suicide & Crisis Lifeline if the client is experiencing an emergency

Telephone Etiquette

Don't presume that people (faculty, co-therapists, etc.) recognize your voice, even if you are calling someone you know well. Begin each call with, "Hello, this is [your first and, perhaps, last name] from FamilyWorks. Speak slowly, listen carefully to each caller. Always be respectful.

How to Dial On and Off-Campus

Calling an On-Campus Number. To place on-campus calls, dial only the last 4 digits of the phone number. For example, from a phone on campus, (229) 219-1281 can be reached by just dialing 1281.

Calling an Off-Campus Number. To place local, off-campus calls, you must first dial 8, which will open an outside line. When calling non-local numbers (i.e. other area codes), you will have to dial 8 to open the line, then 1 and the client's phone number.

Use of Email, Cell Phone, and Social Media

The use of email, personal cell phones, and social media involves complex questions of legal, ethical, and pragmatic issues. Because FamilyWorks is part of a university system, we cannot assume complete client confidentiality within the university computer system. You also cannot know who has access to your client's emails, either unauthorized or authorized by the client. You could encrypt your e-mails, but this requires the complexity of public and private encryption keys, and you would have to teach your clients to use them. And then there are the complex ethical questions: What are your liabilities if a suicidal client sends you an e-mail that you don't see or can't answer for 12 hours because you're in the air? Or the client who writes long, detailed personal emails and thus extends the time of his session by half an hour? What about the client who wants a "short" answer right away to a therapy question? Since the social expectation is that emails are answered quite rapidly, how long are you "allowed" to not respond to your clients' emails? Since you have an email relationship with them, can you have a period of time (a week? a month?) during which you are not obligated to respond? The list could go on.

As the above questions indicate, these are complicated questions. It is for these reasons and more that we continue to write our case notes on paper and do not communicate with clients using the Internet. Thus, it is the current policy that under no circumstances are FamilyWorks therapists to engage with clients by email, text, Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, or any form of social media. These types of media are public and not in any way secure.

Email messages can be used to communicate with other GA/shift managers/therapists about client appointments, telephone calls, and other administrative tasks. However, under no circumstance are clients' names, addresses or phone numbers to be fully or directly used in email exchanges. All references to clients must be oblique and/or coded and should never include therapeutic content. References to clients must be by some means other than names or descriptions that could identify a client. Appointment date and time are often used. An email from a GA/shift manager to a therapist might read, for example, "Hello, [MFT Student]. The client that you have scheduled for tomorrow, Jan. 6, Monday, at 7pm called to cancel." If you are unable to compose an email that is both clear and excludes client name or identifying information, then you must use the telephone or other means of communicating with the GA/shift managers.

Intake Procedures

Clients begin their relationship with the therapeutic process when they or their representative make their first contact with FamilyWorks, usually at the point of intake. The initial conversation that the client has with the intake worker generates a first impression that will shape clients' later contact with their therapist. This means that the intake conversation is the first point at which a positive orientation toward therapy can be fostered as the intake worker shows him or herself to be a safe person and an empathetic listener who has the best interests of the client at heart. The intake worker who is able to treat clients in ways that acknowledge that asking for help can be hard, that reflect client strengths, and nurtures the trust necessary for the work to come.

The established protocols for initiating therapeutic services at the FamilyWorks is as follows: While on the phone with a prospective client, the GA/shift managers or service-leader also does the following:

- Discusses the way FamilyWorks therapists work, including digital recording and consultation teams
- Sets the fee with the client based on the sliding Fee Schedule (see Appendix A).
- Gives the caller the name of the student who will be the caller's therapist (will see the rotation list for this information).

When a prospective client calls for therapeutic services, a GA or shift manager documents the following information on the Intake Form:

1. Demographic information (client name, address, phone number, etc.)
2. The reason for contacting the clinic
3. Information about previous therapy
4. Other agencies involved, if any
5. Information about DFCS mandates or court orders to therapy, court documents including restraining orders and shared parental responsibility
6. Use the Rotation List to find an available therapist. It is very important that once you assign a client to a therapist that you cross out their name, date and move their name to the bottom of the list. In addition, move their availability sheet to the back of the book. This ensures that therapists have an equal opportunity to obtain clients. Please review the section "Rotation List" for a more detailed explanation.
7. Place the Intake Sheet in the Completed Intakes folder.
8. Contact the practicum supervisor or the therapist assigned by email and phone and inform him or her that a new client. Note: Under no circumstances will the GA/SM/intake person leave direct identifying information such as names or phone numbers on message machines or send it through emails. The message that therapists receive will merely inform them that they have a new client, and they can get the completed intake from the intake office.
9. Clients who elect not to receive services at FamilyWorks are given alternate treatment options such as other community agencies or private practitioners.

Making Appointments for New Clients

Consultation teams (practica) always get priority for clients. When you begin your shift as an intake person, begin by checking whether a faculty practicum supervisor has submitted a request for a new case. Then, when a client calls the clinic for an appointment, the GA/shift manager will ask the client if she or he has the practica dates available for the appointment. If the client is not available during practicum time or does not wish to work with a team, then assign the client to the therapist that is at the top of the rotation list. After the GA/shift manager has finished on the phone with the client, he or she calls the assigned therapist. If the therapist is not reached in person, a message is left on their phone. In addition to the phone message, the GA/SM emails the assigned therapist with a non-specific (no names, gender, case particulars) message that she or she has been assigned a new client.

Walk-In Clinic

The FamilyWorks Walk-In Clinic is a great opportunity to gain additional clinical experience. Walk-in therapy provides clients with an alternative to the typical therapeutic process.

- No appointment needed.
- No phone calls.
- No ongoing appointments.

FamilyWorks Walk-In Clinic Process

- Client walks in, seeking a non-emergency single session.
- Client completes short intake/background sheet and the informed consent.
- Therapist reserves the therapy room/schedules recording while the client completes the paperwork.
- Client meets with therapist for approximately 1 hour.
- Therapist writes case note on the session.
- Therapist follows up with client in 2 weeks (document in the packet).

Therapists can sign up for a 2-hour shift. Please note, client sessions are not guaranteed for each shift. During any open times when there are no clients, therapists can utilize their shift to complete case notes, read, or work on homework, as long as they remain available in the building to take walk-in clients.

Before the first walk-in clinic shift, please review the Walk-In Clinic Training PowerPoint for an overview of paperwork procedures and the single-session therapy model used for walk-in clinic appointments. Then, complete the Walk-In Clinic quiz. Therapists must receive 100% to be eligible to participate in walk-in clinic hours.

Other Important Information:

- Our clinic is not an emergency clinic.
- We will not advertise the WIC as being for emergencies.
- If a consultation team has the ability to see the walk-in client, we will check with them first.
- No Fee and Contact Sheet Needed.
- No new file opened.
- Document packet will be filed in a drawer in the GA workroom labeled "Walk In Clinic"

The Rotation List

Client appointments are assigned according to a rotating list of student therapists. Once a student has been released by her supervisor to see clients at the clinic on her own, they will go onto the rotation list, beginning at the bottom. When the student at the top of the rotation list gets a new client, their name is rotated to the bottom of the list, and the next name on the list rises to the top. (The student does not go on the rotation list if released to do co-therapy only. Rather, the student can make it known to other therapists that she is available to do co-therapy.) The therapist who is assigned the case will select his or her own co-therapist. Only the therapist to whom the case is assigned moves down the rotation list. The co-therapist does NOT move on the rotation list. If a student receives a personal referral (a client calls in and asks for a therapist by name), regardless of her place on the rotation list, she is assigned that case, and rotates to the bottom of the list. A student can receive an unlimited number of personal referrals.

When a client makes a call for therapy, he or she is mostly likely at the peak of their desire and willingness to speak with a therapist. We want to capture that point of readiness. The more quickly clients can be seen after they call the clinic, the less likely they are to no-show or cancel. Working hard to accommodate clients' scheduling needs is one of the ways that FamilyWorks prides itself on being client centered. When a client wants an appointment the same day, the next day, or within two days of the call, it is the policy of the clinic to comply with these requests to the extent possible.

Here is how the rotation list works:

- After you've completed the intake, make sure you've signed the intake form
- Cross out the name of the student at the top of the rotation list (the person to whom you are assigning the new case for which you just did the intake), then rewrite that therapist's name at the bottom of the rotation list.
- If a therapist has been given a client but is unable to see the client, it is his/her responsibility to take care of that client. It is NOT to be given back to the intake or Shift manager.
- If a client no-shows, the therapist remains at the bottom of the rotation sheet

A growing number of our MFT students have internships at sites in which clients come to FamilyWorks to see the intern rather than see the intern on site at the internship. The process for handling this is as follow:

1. These are considered "personal" referrals. When students get a personal referral, so, for example, Amber Collins, who is interning with a pediatrician, Dr. Loeffler, gets a referral, regardless of where she is on the rotation list, Amber goes to the bottom of the rotation list. From that position, she can, and probably will, continue to get referrals from Dr. Loeffler's office. In the meantime, Amber, who is now at the bottom of the referral list. Amber may not move up as rapidly because she keeps getting personal referrals.

2. Personal referral from internships can go to other students (other than the internship site student) when the internship student's caseload is too full. Should they become too full, they will inform the Clinical Coordinator, who will let the intake desk know that temporarily, referrals from their site can go to the general rotation list.

Same or Next Day Appointments

When a client requests an appointment on the same day that they call the clinic or for the next day, the shift manager will go down the rotation list until they reach a therapist by voice who is able to accommodate the day and time requested by the client.

Therapist Responsiveness

All students seeing clients at FamilyWorks are required to be readily available and reasonably responsive to communications from and about their clients. To that end, each student must provide telephone numbers, email addresses, and other means of contact at which they can be reached by faculty, co-therapists, GA/shift manager's, and in the case of emergency. Confidential information will not be left on therapists' home answering machines. Consequently, therapists are responsible for being responsive to any schedule changes, client messages, and administrative issues that need their immediate attention.

How to Use the Scheduling Book

In order to track appointments and to keep a record of which therapy rooms are occupied on what days and times, all therapy sessions are to be documented in the Scheduling Book on the OneDrive. Whenever a practicum, a faculty member, or a therapist schedules an appointment with a client, he or she is responsible for documenting the appointment in the digital scheduling book. The scheduling book is organized by colors indicating information about the session:

F2F New - Green

F2F Returning - Orange

No Show - Red

Reschedule - Blue

Cancel – Purple

Hendricks	EF	1hr	X				X	5:00p
								5:15p
								5:30p
								5:45p
								6:00p	Walker	MJ	1hr	x					x
								6:15p

Practica Requests for New Cases

The faculty supervisor (or designee) is responsible for tracking the practicum's clinical activity each week by entering follow-up sessions into the Scheduling Book. When a practicum has an open time slot, the faculty supervisor requests a new client by documenting the request at the top of their practicum availability sheet. Requests for cases from practica receive priority over requests for clients from individual therapists.

The One-Way Mirror

The one-way mirror requires that the team in the Observation Room sit in darkness. Remember that when you turn a light on in the Observation Room, clients are able to see through the mirror into the Observation Room. This can be distracting or even awkward for clients. When you enter an Observation Room, close the door behind you as quickly and as quietly as you can. During the time that the Observation Room door is open, light from the hall streams into the Observation Room and clients can see into the interior of the observation room. This is disruptive to clients.

Parking Permits and Citation

MFT students, faculty, and staff are required to purchase a University parking permit. Clients are not required to register with Parking Services, but they must display a parking pass in their vehicle window while on campus. Therapists are responsible for providing clients with updated parking passes each semester. If a client is properly parked and displaying a valid pass but still receives a citation, they are not expected to pay the fine. Please ask your clients to give you the citation if one is issued. The Clinical Coordinator will contact Parking Services to request that the citation be waived. Please note that parking in reserved or handicapped spaces will result in a citation that cannot be waived.

Therapy Agreement and Informed Consent

It is therapists' responsibility to review with clients the forms that they will be signing. At the first session, the therapist reviews the Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent, obtains required signature(s), and answers any questions and concerns the client may have. Assure that the following are reviewed:

- confidentiality and its limits
- the fee
- the no show policy
- the cancellation policy
- the process of therapy at a university training clinic—the team, videotaping procedures, the intercom telephone, consultation breaks, etc.

MIDS Transportation for a Client

You can arrange transportation for clients through MIDS. If a client has Medicaid or Medicare, he or she can use MIDS free of charge. However, they must call 5 days in advance, not including the day of the appointment or the day of the call (so think of it as 7 days in advance, just to be safe). This is also useful information to hand out when doing intakes. MIDS has a toll free number that the client can get if they do not qualify. In the event they do not qualify, the trips are typically $3 to a destination.

MIDS

1610 River Street, Valdosta, GA 31601-5123.

Phone: (229) 316-2153 or (229) 247-0914

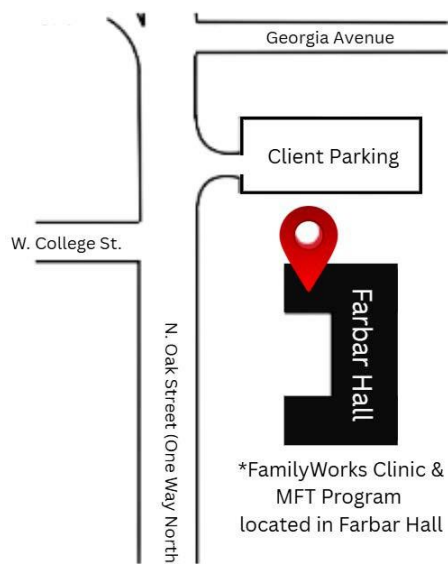

The information you need to have ready before making the call includes the following:

- client's Medicaid number
- address at which client will be picked up
- address at which client will be dropped off
- name of provider where the client is being seen (FamilyWorks)
- day and time of transportation.

Directions to FamilyWorks

- FamilyWorks and the MFT Program are housed together. Our address is 1800 N. Oak Street, Valdosta, GA 31602. Our phone number for both the program and the FamilyWorks clinic is 229-219-1281.
- We are located in Farbar Hall on VSU Campus.
- You can reach us by turning left at the corner of Baytree Road onto N. Oak Street. Once you are on N. Oak Street, continue past Palms Dining Center. Shortly after, you will see a crosswalk at W. College Street.
- The parking lot for Farbar Hall will be on your right, just after W. College Street.
- Tip: If you reach the traffic light at Georgia Avenue, you've gone too far—just loop around and come back one block.

Clinical Procedure and Professional Conduct

Abuse Reporting

In accordance with Georgia State law, if a therapist has reasonable cause to believe a child or an elder might be abused or neglected, he or she is obligated (mandated) to make a report. All suspected or known incidents of abuse or neglect that have not already been reported are reported, by either the client or the therapist, to Lowndes County Department of Family and Children's Services (DFCS) at 333-5202 (from a VSU phone, dial 9-333-5202). When making this call, be prepared to provide demographic information (parent(s) name, home address, telephone number(s), age of child(ren) and so on) as well as a description of the abuse event(s). The following guidelines are written to facilitate therapists' compliance with the law and their responsibility to maintain confidentiality and the best interests of the client:

1. It is not your responsibility to investigate or prove your suspicions. If your suspicions occur during a session, discuss with your client your legal responsibility to report. Encourage the client to file the report him or herself. If the parent(s) agrees, accompany them to a telephone located in a private area of FamilyWorks. Develop a follow-up plan with the parent(s).
2. Before or after you notify DFCS, notify your faculty supervisor and the Clinical Coordinator that you have a situation that has required or may require a report to DFCS. Be prepared to summarize the circumstances of the abuse situation and what information and action(s) you have discussed with the client(s)

3. To preserve the client's trust, you may need to again discuss your actions with the client after the investigation is complete. As always, it is advisable to consult with your supervisor concerning issues of ethical or legal responsibility.
4. Clearly document in the client case file all actions that you took (all phone calls, your assessment of the matter, your conversation with DFCS, your supervisor, any colleagues).

Confidentiality

FamilyWorks is guided by AAMFT's Code of Ethics, and Georgia statutes, which are designed to safeguard the identity of clients, clinical activity, case records, and any additional forms of information created while affiliated with the clinic. Privacy and confidentiality issues are complex and become even more so when the unit of treatment is a family, a couple, or a relationship. Always contact your faculty supervisor when you have questions regarding confidentiality and professional ethics. The Clinical Coordinator can also be consulted.

Therapists must abide by the following procedures to assure client confidentiality:

All clients must be informed about the confidentiality policies (including limits to confidentiality) at the beginning of the first session. A Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent, the form that outlines confidentiality policies must be signed and kept in each client file before therapy can begin.

The Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent must include in writing the fee agreed between therapist and client.

In the absence of a release of information, no information of any kind can be given out about client(s) as set forth in the Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent.

Discussions about clients and cases must be restricted to closed session rooms, the observation room, or supervisors' offices.

Intake sheets, client files, assessment instruments, and other materials pertaining to the client must be kept in the clinic and locked in file cabinets when not in use. The individual therapist and the clinic can be held legally liable if confidentiality is breached because of files being taken from the clinic.

Client involvement at the clinic must be kept confidential in therapist-client contacts outside the clinic. It is important to protect your therapeutic relationships from becoming known to individuals in the general community. If, for example, you run into a client in public, make sure that you do not inadvertently make your therapeutic relationship apparent to the friend (either the client's or yours) who is also part of the encounter.

Never talk about clients in social situations or other inappropriate places. Discussing clients is only acceptable as part of a conversation that is supervisory in nature. There are no exceptions to this.

More About Confidentiality

All communications that you have with your clients are confidential. Failure to protect your clients' privilege to have their communications held in confidence can result in any or all the following: expulsion from membership in AAMFT, expulsion from your state professional organization, expulsion from Valdosta State University and the MFT program, a lawsuit against you, and loss of professional license or the ability to seek licensure.

Confidential information will be carefully safeguarded. Only under specific legal circumstances can you divulge information about the therapeutic work that you are doing with your clients.

There are as follows:

- When clients give you written permission to talk to someone else about them
- When the client tells you things that the law requires you to divulge, such as child or elder abuse, intention to harm another person or him or herself.
- When a court order, signed by a judge, orders you to divulge information.

At any time that these specific conditions are not present, you must not give information of any kind about your client(s) to any person. This means that if anyone—a judge, a caseworker, a lawyer, a doctor—were to call and ask if a certain person was being seen at the Clinic or to ask about a particular client's therapy, you must tell the caller that in the absence of a signed release of information, you cannot discuss clients in any form. This includes relaying whether a certain person is or was a client at the Clinic.

An example of this might look as such:

A person from a state-run office (for instance, the Department of Children & Family Services) calls and requests information about the last date a client was seen for therapy. The appropriate response would be, "I can neither confirm nor deny whether or not he/she was or is a client at FamilyWorks. Please ask your client to sign a Release of Information requesting FamilyWorks to request such information, fax it to us, and I will be most happy to search for this client. If he or she is a client, I will call you with the information you have requested."

Written communications are afforded the same privilege of confidentiality given verbal communication. Clients' case records and digital recordings are confidential material. All client information (including correspondence, evaluations provided by outside agencies, hand written letters from clients, data gathering forms, etc.) are to be kept in the client's file. All files on current clients at FamilyWorks are stored in the records filing cabinet located in the Clinical Filing Room. Whenever no one is in the clinic, the filing cabinet and room must be locked.

Client files, all documents that identify client information, and audio or video recordings of sessions are not removed from the FamilyWorks as a matter of course. Only under specific circumstances can case records or videotapes leave the Clinic. If confidential material must be taken from one place to another—say to court or to your supervisor’s office for supervision—they must be transported according to the specific guidelines in the section below, Transporting Confidential Material.

Always review a request for the release of information. Make sure that the proper signatures, dates, and parameters are in place. Sometimes you may have a release of information but still be uncertain or have a question about confidentiality. Before you act, consult with your supervisor or a faculty member.

It is important to maintain an atmosphere of professionalism at FamilyWorks. This means that while you are bound by formal ethics and laws of confidentiality, more informal constraints should guide your behavior at the Clinic. Clients should see that confidentiality is always uppermost on your mind. Always hold conversations about clients behind closed doors: never in the hallway, the waiting room, or the bathroom. Do not leave files and case-related forms lying around. They should not be seen by anyone other than therapists or faculty. View VALT recordings, including role-playing and training sessions, at times or in places that clients cannot see or hear them. If a client sees you viewing a recording, they cannot tell whether the recording you are watching is a role-play or a real family, and may conclude that you are willing to be casual with confidentiality.

Finally, even though you work in a therapy clinic, you do not have free-reign access to all clients’ files. (Exceptions to this are faculty and faculty appointed file reviewers, Clinical Coordinator, etc.). The privilege of confidentiality for clients extends to anyone outside the immediate treatment team and faculty. If you are reviewing a file that means that you’ve been observing the case, you can be considered a part of the team. Nonetheless, respect the therapist’s work with the client and do him or her the courtesy of asking permission to see the file. Unless there is some extraordinary circumstance that you don’t know about, he or she will routinely grant this permission.

Why such a broad clinic policy? At times, family, friends, and acquaintances of students in the program come to FamilyWorks to see a therapist. A broad policy that restricts file viewing to the immediately relevant treatment clinicians and supervisors, prevents you from discovering that your next door neighbor (an acquaintance with whom you share a pew on Sunday, the receptionist at your dentist’s office, your mom, the girl that sells you cigarettes at the 7-11, etc., etc.) are in therapy at FamilyWorks. These folks are the focus of our care, and they must be given the option of telling you—or not—that they are seeing a therapist in the clinic where you study. If they haven’t told you on their own, there may be a reason for that. If they have told you and you know they are coming here but don’t know the details of the work they are doing here, your unrelated-to-treatment curiosity will have to remain unsatisfied. If you rob them of these freedoms, you breach their confidentiality, a serious infraction.

Research

Research opportunities are available for faculty and students of the Family Therapy Program. Following IRB approval of any and all research proposals, assessment instruments can be administered to selected clients for clinical and research purposes, or clients can be interviewed with the appropriate consent forms in place. Assuming that the proper client signatures have been secured on the Release and Permission to Use Recorded Material for Research or Instructional Purposes form, recordings produced at the clinic can be used for clinical research and scholarly presentations. Students are encouraged to participate in faculty or classmates' research projects.

Release and Permission to Use Digital Recordings for Research Purposes

If a faculty member or a student wants to use recorded material (DVD, audio- or videotapes) outside of the MFT program for research or instructional purposes (conferences, etc.), all persons, 18 or older who participated in therapy and/or who appear in the videotape of the session must sign the Release and Permission to Use Recorded Material for Research or Instructional Purposes form. The client/family must be fully informed about how the tapes will be used. If a tape is to be used as part of a research study, approval by VSU Internal Review Board (IRB) must be obtained and all appropriate IRB protocols followed.

Releasing Privileged Information

Professional privilege is not absolute in most states. According to Georgia statutes, therapists are required to reveal privileged information under certain circumstances. These include:

- Communication is relevant to the hospitalization of a client. If, in the course of treatment, a therapist has reasonable cause to believe the client is in need of hospitalization.
- A judicial court order requiring therapist communication.
- When therapeutic information is relevant to the issue of the client's emotional or mental condition in any proceeding in which the client relies upon the condition as an element of his or her claim or defense.

The limits of confidentiality are described in the FamilyWorks Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent, which all clients read and sign before therapy begins. Therapists will discuss confidentiality with clients to ensure that they are fully aware of the circumstances where confidentiality is breached. Determine whether clients have any questions regarding confidentiality and, when needed, will seek guidance from their faculty supervisor or the Clinical Coordinator.

Release of Information

Clients have a right to view their files when they wish because they "own" the information that we collect about them in our files. This is one of the reasons that we get their permission when we release their information to anyone, including the client by him or herself. The procedure by which information is released to clients themselves or someone else is as follows:

- When a client wants us to send written or give verbal information to someone else or release it to him- or herself, they grant us permission by signing a Release of Information (ROI) form. Verbal permission is meaningless and unacceptable.
- An ROI must be signed by all adult members (18 or over) attending therapy. The ROI must be signed before any exchange of information (either verbal or written) takes place. Whenever you obtain a signed Release of Information, write a note in the case file documenting this fact.
- If a current client (someone who has a current, open file) asks for a copy of his or her file, tell the client that you'll inform the therapist of the client's request. The therapist, who knows the identity of the client, will take responsibility for securing a signature on an ROI.
- If a client who is not current (the file is closed and the therapist has graduated) requests a release of information, whether to him or herself or to someone else, tell the person to come to the clinic with a photo ID (passport, driver's license). Make a copy of the photo ID, and give the client an ROI to sign, make sure you have the client's correct name and contact phone number, and let the client know that you will pass the request on to the Clinical Coordinator. Make sure that the Clinical Coordinator gets the ROI that you had the client sign (i.e., put it in her mailbox with a note or email saying what the signed ROI is about, or hand it directly to her). She will pull the client's file, put the signed request inside, review the file, and contact the client to make sure that he or she gets the requested copies.

Client Request for Written Information

Clients sometimes request a letter stating that they are getting services at FamilyWorks. Obtain the appropriate signatures from all relevant clients on a Release of Information form. Your supervisor should review the letter/report that you draft prior to mailing. All written information originating from FamilyWorks must be typed on FamilyWorks' letterhead and a copy placed in the client file.

Subpoena of Therapeutic Information and Records

A subpoena is a legal document or order that requires the therapist to appear and testify in court and/or to produce documents. A subpoena duces tecum is an order requiring the therapist appear in person and to bring specific documents, reports, tapes or any other specified records that are in the possession or under the control of the witness, to a certain place at a certain time. A subpoena can be issued by various court personnel for different reasons. Confidential client information is only released under a Judicial court order (initiated and signed by a Judge or a Judicial designee such as a General Master).

- Never attempt to avoid being served a subpoena.
- Never surrender documents or give confidential information of any kind to the server, no matter how insistent or aggressive he or she may be. Simply give your name, if that is asked for and accept the subpoena.

- A subpoena issued by an attorney looks very much like an official judicial subpoena. Upon receipt of a judicial subpoena, notify your supervisor to review the subpoena, discuss any questions or concerns, and determine a course of action. Record any action taken in the case file.
- Never acknowledge to the subpoena server that you know or treated the client whose records are being subpoenaed.
- Report subpoenas to your liability insurance (CPH).
- Never, under any circumstances, ignore a subpoena of any sort. You must respond one way or another.
  - ✓ Once you receive the subpoena, make an appointment with your supervisor and study subpoena: Who initiated the subpoena? A judge/court or an attorney? Does releasing information compromise your client's welfare or the welfare of other people? What state and federal laws (e.g., HIPAA, Patriot Act, copyright laws) impact how you respond to the subpoena? What does the codes of ethics tell you about how to respond to a subpoena? What are the relevant therapeutic circumstances?
  - ✓ Next, call your client(s). Advise her or him that the record of your work together has been subpoenaed. Tell her/him/them that if willing to release the information, you require a signed ROI giving you permission to do so. If there was more than one person/client involved in treatment, you must secure authorization to release information from each client before releasing any information.
    - If the client expresses willingness to sign an ROI, fill out the release for a one-time disclosure for the purpose of responding to a subpoena. AFTER the ROI is signed, call the attorney who initiated the subpoena. Inform him or her that you have received the subpoena and will be preparing the file for copying and release. Provide a date as to when you will have that completed.
    - If the client is unwilling (to release information), contact the attorney who served the subpoena in writing, letting her or him know that you have received the subpoena but that you do not have the client's permission to release the requested information, which is confidential. If the attorney still wishes to see your client's file, he or she will have to then move to get a judge's order to release the information. Unless you can make the case that releasing it would be in some way injurious to your client, you must then release the information.
    - Sometimes providing only a summary of the treatment rather than appearing in person or providing the entire file may be acceptable to clients, attorneys and courts.
    - When appropriate and legally allowed, provide the minimum information necessary. However, some situations may demand that you release the entire file
    - If a signed authorization to release form is included, but the therapist believes that the material may be clinically damaging, s/he should discuss these issues with the client before releasing the records
    - Never alter records.
    - Sometimes providing only a summary of the treatment rather than appearing in person or providing the entire file may be acceptable to clients, attorneys, courts.

Transporting Confidential Material

Whenever case files or recorded material (DVD's, videotapes, audiotapes) are transported to or from the clinic, the following procedure must be strictly observed:

- To walk with confidential material (thumb drives, videotape, audiotape, client file) from a building to your car or from your car to a building, the student must have the material placed securely in a locked backpack, briefcase, suitcase, or satchel of some kind. This may require that the student purchase a small padlock.
- While driving from one place to another, the locked bag must remain in a lockable space in your car, such as the trunk or secure lock box.
- During any time that you are not viewing or reading the materials, they must remain in a locked container (backpack, briefcase, suitcase, or satchel of some kind) always.
- While in a public place—for example, a courthouse building—the student must be mindful that he or she is transporting confidential material and keep the container close to his or her person and take appropriate precautions.

Professional Conduct and Dress

FamilyWorks is a professional clinic, and even though you are a student, you are now professionals providing professional services. To provide our clients with the best care and to maintain university and community support, FamilyWorks must continue to operate with professionalism.

- Maintain a professional attitude and demeanor.
- Be responsible for assuring that your appointment times and dates are documented in the scheduling book.
- Be on time. Therapists should never be late for sessions. Most of you will go through this program never once being late for your clients. This is as it should be. Others of you will be late on a very rare occasion. That happens to us all. When you are going to be late, you have to call the Clinical Coordinator. If you can't reach her, call your immediate practicum supervisor. If for some reason you can't reach her, call the next faculty member of your choice.
- Whenever possible, let someone know you are on your way if you are detained.
- Respect the need for quiet in the clinic area, especially in the Observation Room.
- Respect clinic property and the personal property of your fellow students.
- If the equipment is not working properly or we run out of supplies, attempt to solve the problem yourself. If you are unable to do so, leave a note for one of the graduate assistants, and find another room.
- All therapists, whether at the clinic individually or as part of a practicum, are responsible for keeping the clinic neat. This includes straightening up after yourself and your clients. Make sure that the waiting room is in order, toys are back where they belong, magazines are neatly arranged, kitchen counters and the microwave are wiped clean.

Observation of Therapy Sessions by Non-MFT Program Members

Team members are generally limited to faculty and MFT program students. Permission for non-program observers to view therapy sessions must be granted beforehand by the faculty supervisor responsible for the practicum or the case. If granted, non-program observers must sign the Guest Agreement to Maintain Client Privacy and Confidentiality (see the Clinical Coordinator for this form).

Building Maintenance & Work Orders

FamilyWorks building and all interior equipment and structures are to be maintained in proper working conditions so that the Clinic remains safe and comfortable for all. Faculty members or a designee can call VSU's Plant Operations for minor requests for repairs (i.e., leaks, air conditioning, plumbing or electrical problems, changing light bulbs, etc.). Major problems must be brought to the attention of a faculty member.

- If you are requested by faculty to call in a work order of any kind, please be sure to include the Clinical Coordinator's name, especially for IT work orders (this ensures that he/she can log onto the IT webpage and check on the progress of these work orders).
- If a worker comes to fulfill a work order, direct them to the Clinical Coordinator or the Program Director.

Teletherapy Procedures

MFT Program Policy on Telemental Health Therapy Practice

In compliance with COAMFTE V12.5 Accreditation Standards, the MFT Program requires students who engage in telehealth therapy to do the following:

- Be registered in MFTH 7600 or Internship and under the supervision of an MFT Program faculty supervisor who is fully licensed and physically located in that state.
- Be familiar with and comply with all Georgia state requirements regarding teletherapy.
- Provide therapy to clients physically in the same state they are providing therapy.
- Attest to Teletherapy Policy
- Attest to reading *Best Practices in the Online Practice of Couples and Family Therapy, AAMFT code of Ethics*
- Obtain 6 required CEs on Telemental Health

Telehealth Competency and Liability

- 3 CE requirement before admittance into the program for Telehealth
- 3 CE requirement obtained during the program for Telehealth (Today's Training)
- Supervisor's CE requirement
- Continued supervision regarding telemental health cases
- The liability insurance attained through AAMFT student membership (CPH) does include coverage for telehealth services.

Requirements for Conducting Telemental health on a Personal Device

- Students are allowed to use their own laptops to conduct telemental health sessions within FamilyWorks clinic, but only when the following criteria have been met.
- Students must have a secure internet connection when engaging in telemental health and accessing (no open WiFi is allowed). You are expected to use the VSU-WiFi network that you must login to via 2FA.
- Students must only utilize VSU-recommended software. Read the recommendations & access virus protection here: <https://www.valdosta.edu/administration/it/solutions/personal-devices/recommended-technologies.php>
- Students must take the utmost care and personal responsibility in their use of Teams and software on their personal device to protect client data and confidentiality (e.g., do NOT save login information, logging out when finished; only accessing the software in private spaces).
- Students must only use Teams software on approved and secure devices, which includes laptops or iPad/tablet.
- Do not disturb should be "turned on" for tablets.
- No Cell Phones are allowed.
- Note: You can check out a laptop at the media center!

Eligibility for Tele-Therapy at FamilyWorks Clinic

*Pre-Screening Conducted by the Intake Worker.

- What are your reasons for seeking telemental health vs in-person services?
- One of the following must be true:
  - Does not have access to transportation
  - Resides over 30 miles away
  - Issues of mobility such as (An individual recovering from a medical procedure or illness that limits travel)
  - Limited access to reliable childcare
  - Health concerns that make in-person visits difficult to travel or leave the house
- If one of the following conditions were met, then ask...
  - All the following must be true
    - Is 18 years or older
    - Is a current residence in GA
    - Has a webcam, headset or speakers, microphone and a reliable internet connection.
    - Can use a phone if you have this technology, i.e. Not a flip phone.
    - All telemental health session must include video.

Consultation Session vs First Session

Call Client 24 hours after receiving intake to schedule a consultation session.

To be completed during Consultation Session:

- Confirm Email
- Complete Background Form
- Screen for Appropriateness for Telemental Health vs Face to Face:
- Best Practices state: Client must be assessed for the appropriateness of receiving telemental health services vs face-to-face
- Review Paperwork
- Confirm Fee amount & discuss electronic payment platform
- Therapist Availability and Contact Plan
- Review Telemental Health Expectations
- Review What to do if/when have technical difficulties
- Determine if the client is suitable or not suitable for telemental health services at FamilyWorks

Consultation Session

- Call client to schedule a consultation session
- Explain purpose of this session
- Explain Teams
- Will use Teams/Video
- Will need to send an encrypted link via FamilyWorks email
- Book a space via Scheduling book (TMH)

Consultation Session: Screening for Suitability

MFTs recognize that in some cases, online therapy is not the most appropriate treatment option. Prior to committing to the ongoing provision of online services, MFTs engaging in online practice must assess whether online services are appropriate to client needs.

This includes:

- Consideration of the type and severity of symptoms
- The nature of the treatment being sought
- Client access to adequate, secure, and confidential means of online communication with the therapist
- Client ability to effectively use the relevant technology

Possible Questions to Screen for Suitability

- Consideration of the type and severity of symptoms & nature of the treatment being sought
- Questions:
- "Can you tell me more about the challenges or symptoms that brought you to therapy?"
- "What are you hoping to work on in therapy?"
- "Have you ever experienced thoughts of harming yourself or others?"
- "Do you ever feel unsafe at home or in your current environment?"
- "Have you been hospitalized or received emergency mental health services recently?"
- "Have you had therapy before, and if so, was it online or in person? What worked or didn't work for you?"
- "Do you feel that talking online would meet your needs, or do you think in-person support might feel more effective for you right now?"

TMH Forms

Must obtain informed consent from your clients before providing telemental health services, which includes explaining the risks and benefits of telemental health, the limitations of technology, and the potential for technical difficulties or interruptions.

See our new telemental health forms here: Teletherapy

- FamilyWorks Informed Consent to Teletherapy Services
- Expectations for Telemental Services at FamilyWorks
- Microsoft Teams Statement
- Resources for Emergency and Non-Emergency needs

Informed Consent & Client Emergencies

- FamilyWorks Clinic is not equipped as an emergency resource or crisis center, and we do not offer after-hours or on-call services.
- Therapists should inform clients of limits to confidentiality which may apply in emergency or crisis situations.
  - Clients should be provided emergency contact information in the beginning of treatment, including telephone numbers they can use in the event of an emergency or crisis.
  - Emergency contact numbers & Resources will be sent via DocuSign w/informed consent documents
- In telemental health, the therapist will also establish the name and information of an emergency contact person or "ECP" who could physically help to intervene in the event the client was in crisis.

Therapist Availability and Contact Plan

- MFTs engaging in online practice inform clients of their availability for additional communication between scheduled sessions, and for crisis intervention.
- They inform clients of the best means of between-session communications (phone, email, text messaging, etc.).
- FamilyWorks Phone ONLY.
- Typical response time for such communications.
- 24 hours (M-F) , if you call on a Friday, will not be able to return your call till Monday.
- MFTs inform clients of typical office days and hours, and of times when the therapist is not expected to be available.
- Explain being a therapist trainee.
- They inform clients of the best way to notify the MFT that the client is in a crisis situation.
- FamilyWorks does not provide emergency services or session. If you are experiencing an emergency, you will need to call 911 or proceed to the nearest hospital emergency room if I am experiencing an emergency. Please refer to the resource form sent to you via docusign.

Assisting Clients to use Telemental Health Platform Effectively

- Clients may need coaching from the practitioner regarding how to create boundaries in their home to establish privacy for their tele-session.
- Brainstorm with your client possible ways to establish privacy for their meetings.
- Solutions may include...
- Sitting alone in a (non-moving) car.
- Sitting outside on a porch or in a yard.
- Sitting in the bathroom.
- Encourage your client's creative thinking to identify solutions to the lack of privacy

The Decision

After reviewing all the materials, hearing the client's response to the background form, and considering the type and severity of symptoms as well as the nature of the treatment being sought you will need to determine if the client, given their current condition is suitable for teletherapy.

- If the client is deemed appropriate for telemental health:
- Proceed with the next steps in the intake process (e.g., schedule the first session, complete consent forms, etc.).

- If you are uncertain about the client's suitability:
- Consult with your supervisor before making a final determination.
- Inform the client that you will contact them once a decision has been made about whether FamilyWorks can provide telemental health services at this time.
- If the client is found not to be suitable for telemental health services:
- "Right now, we don't have the resources in place to assist with the technological aspects needed to ensure online therapy would be effective for you."

Before Ending the Consultation Session

- Determine if they are suitable for telemental health services at FamilyWorks
- Schedule your first session
- Confirm client's email
- Explain that they will be receiving the TMH Forms via docusign from Jessica Millican via their email.
- Prior to your first telemental health session you will receive informed consent, teams' agreement, expectations for telemental health at FamilyWorks, and a resource list via doc-u-sign. This is an online platform which allows one to easily sign online documents. These forms must be completed and received prior to attending your first telemental health session.
- Please complete these at least 24 hours prior to our first session (provide the day/date)
  - Receive a Teams link for the session via FamilyWorks email
  - How to use Teams
  - No need to download anything
  - Receive the link; Select "join", "continue in browser", "select allow", "enter your name", and then hit "Join Now"
  - Emails that we send from FamilyWorks will be encrypted
  - Remind them that the FamilyWorks email is ONLY for scheduling and that no one monitors this system.
  - Encourage the client join 10 minutes prior to the session to check their camera, audio, etc. and if they have any problems to call FamilyWorks at (229)-219-1281.

Why Documentation Matters

If it's not documented, it did not happen! To ensure that all clients are appropriately screened for telemental health (TMH) services and that the suitability of online therapy is documented in accordance with FamilyWorks policy and ethical best practices.

- Use the FamilyWorks Telemental Health Screening form to complete and document this screening.
- The screening should evaluate the client's symptoms, clinical needs, access to technology, safety considerations, and capacity to engage effectively in an online format.
- Link to form
- If the client is deemed appropriate for telemental health:
- Document this determination on the screening form.
- Proceed with the next steps in the intake process (e.g., schedule the first session, complete consent forms, etc.).
- If the client is found not to be suitable for telemental health services:
- Provide a clear rationale for this determination on the screening form.
- Offer the client at least three referral options in their local area for in-person services & send via FamilyWorks email.

Next Steps....

- Complete Screening & Background form
  - Please place this in the practicum drawer, in the folder where intakes are stored
- Schedule the client in the FamilyWorks scheduling book (TMH)
- Email Jessica to send TMH forms to client.
  - Include clients name (first and last name) and the email address (encrypt the email)
- Create a Teams meeting link
- At least 48 hours confirm forms have been signed by checking FamilyWorks email
  - Reminder: Session cannot occur until these forms have been signed
- At least 24 hours before session, send client link via FamilyWorks email encrypted
- Start Session early to check technology is working

Documenting a Telemental Health Session:

Same scheduling book that is used for F2F sessions.

Documentation can be done in the adjunct office, conference room, observation room 1005C, and any open therapy rooms.

Time	Room 1110 (Adjunct Professor Office)
	Therapist Name	Client Initials	Duration of Session in hours	Type of Session			Practicum Client		TMH
				Individual	Couple	Family	Yes	No

10:45a
11:00a
11:15a
11:30a
11:45a

Scheduling in Teams

- Open your Microsoft Teams app or website and navigate to the calendar.
- Select +New event at the top left.
- Select the "Schedule a meeting" option.
- In the scheduling window that appears, fill in the details of the meeting, such as the title, date, time, and duration.
- For the client, you will have to go to your Teams calendar after you've scheduled the meeting and copy the link.
- Email the link to the client through the FamilyWorks email address and encrypt the email.

Sending an Email Encrypted in Outlook

- Compose a new message, go to the Options tab.

- Then click on the lock.

- Next a window will open. Choose Encrypt.

- After selecting the option, compose and send your email as you normally would.
- Once you encrypt an email in outlook, a message should appear on your screen.

- For recipients, the email will also have this message.

First Session

Before You Start the Therapy Session

- The therapist must obtain verbal consent of conducting a tele-health therapy session
- "I authorize and voluntarily consent to participation and treatment of myself in tele-health services at FamilyWorks"
- Client needs to verbal agree "Yes, I agree"
- Confirm location (address)
- Confirm the client is in a secure location
- If therapy is not in a private space, then therapy cannot commence
- Confirm ECP, name, and phone number
- See background form

Safety Planning

- MFTs engaging in online practice prepare a crisis management plan with every client as soon as possible.
- This plan includes resources local to the client, such as local crisis lines, hospitals, or other emergency services, as appropriate.
- Emergency referrals
- MFTs engaging in online practice coordinate care with local crisis resources as appropriate when a client engages those resources. This ensures adequate continuity of care between providers.
- Discuss 988 resource.
- MFTs engaging in online practice reassess the appropriateness of the client for online services as soon as practicable following a client crisis.
- Documentation of the reassessment is necessary.

Before you End the First Session

- Collect Payment using the online payment platform
- Check in with your client about how the telemental health platform is working for them
- Encourage them to share with you if they are having difficulty using the telemental health platform
- For example, clients maybe be distracted by seeing themselves on camera

Creating the File

- The Telemental Health Forms: Should be printed after the first session.
- Create the file and place all relevant forms inside the file.
- The Screening form should be placed on the left side of the file and be at the very bottom under the informed consent.

Documentation & Telemental Health Sessions

Use the hardcopy FamilyWorks case note. In Each tele-health session, the therapist must ask the client their location. The location needs to match what is listed in the informed consent.

- "For our records can you please state your location (address)"
- The location needs to be documented in each case note.
- If the location is different this needs to be noted in the case note. If they are not in the state of Georgia, then therapy cannot commence.

- If therapy is not in a private space, then therapy cannot commence.
- If the client is consistently not at the location indicated on the informed consent, then a new informed consent must be completed with the new location listed.

First Session Documentation:

Client Name: Emma Wolff PW Case # Wolff Emma 17475 Date: 11/26/25

Session Information

Time	Start	Duration	Start	Time	Location	TMH

Header: (T) - Jessica (C) - Emma

(T) presented in the virtual therapy session as Emma and (T) obtained verbal consent from (C) to move forward with receiving treatment and participating in telehealth services at FamilyWorks. (T) confirmed the location of (C) and that (C) was in a secured, private space. Lastly, (T) confirmed the emergency contact for (C), including their phone and address. (T) began the session by asking exploratory questions to learn more about (C)'s presenting goals. (T) stated that she was hoping to learn more skills to regulate her emotions, especially when "explosive" anger. (T) asked clarifying questions to gain a better understanding of how (C) experiences her anger and her ideas about how anger should be regulated. (T) discussed future use of anger in her life and that it felt as though a purposeful idea on how to use (C) engaged in a dialogue about anger as a secondary problem, and how (T) suggested to (C) that if becoming explosive (T) had to appear to pick up how to regulate emotion which will be for the virtual platform as well. (T) and (C) agreed to meet in a week, and (C) will receive a link for the session via email, which (C) confirmed.

Plan: Continue exploring how (C) navigates her anger when it begins to feel "explosive".

Next Session: 12/03/25 at 1:00pm

Intern Signature(s): Jessica Phillips, MFT in-person

- The therapist must obtain verbal consent of conducting a tele-health therapy session & document in the first session case note.
- "I authorize and voluntarily consent to participation and treatment of myself or child in tele-health services at FamilyWorks."
- Client needs to verbal agree "Yes, I agree."
- Case note example:
  - "T obtained verbal consent from C to move forward with receiving treatment and participating in telehealth services at Familyworks"
  - "T then confirmed the location of C and that C was in a secured, private space"
  - "T confirmed emergency contact information with C"

Documenting on the Fee and Contact Sheet:

- You will note TMH on each entry in the fee and contact sheet (ex: TMH Individual Session, 1 hour).

Documentation Each Tele-Health Case Note:

- Location changes to TMH

Last Reminder

Remind clients that although they are in a more comfortable setting, this is still a clinical appointment, and the focus of your contact will continue to be their treatment goals. This sets the boundary that this is not a friendship but a professional relationship.

Case Files

When a Client Is Assigned

All faculty, students, and practica seeing clients at FamilyWorks are responsible for managing their own clinical caseload and schedules. Therapists on the Rotation List must check their email and/or home message machines at least once daily to determine whether they have received a new client. Upon receiving a message from a GA/shift manager that a new client has been scheduled, the therapist is to place a return call or email to the GA/shift manager confirming that the GA/shift manager's message was received, and that the therapist will follow through with the client.

When a client is assigned, therapists are expected to make phone contact with the client within 24 hours. The phone call enables the therapist to introduce him or herself, confirm the appointment, review the directions to the clinic, and answer any questions the client may have. If the session is set for only one hour—by therapist preference or because of back-to-back room scheduling—therapists should ask clients to arrive 15 minutes early for the first session, so that they can complete paperwork and other bureaucratic tasks and still leave a full hour of talk time.

After contacting the client, therapists are responsible for confirming that the correct date and time is entered into the Scheduling Book. This confirmation can be accomplished by calling a GA/shift managers between 9am and 11am, asking a fellow student to check the Scheduling Book, or the student can consult the Scheduling Book him or herself.

Opening New Case Files

When a therapist sees a new client for the first time, the file will consist of the following forms:

On the left side of the file, top to bottom, are the following:

- Background Information
- Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent
- Release of information (if applicable)
- On the right side of the file, top to bottom, are the following:
- Contact & Fee Record
- Case notes

At times, you may find it necessary to open a second, new file on a client who you are already seeing. For example, you may see someone for individual therapy that turns into marital therapy or you begin seeing the individual's spouse alone. Or you may see a couple, and the husband requests individual therapy. If you see an individual only a few times inside the larger, understood context of marital therapy, or, if you see the partner of your individual client alone or with your original client for only a few sessions, it is not necessary to open a new case file.

However, for ongoing contact, it is strongly recommended that a new file be opened. Document in the case notes of both files that there is a corresponding file on the client and note the case number. Consult with your faculty supervisor to decide whether you should be the therapist for both cases or work in conjunction with another therapist.

When opening a new case file under these circumstances, clients must fill out a new Background Information Sheet and all clients 18 years of age or older must read and (re) sign the Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent. A new and/or additional fee must be worked out.

Managing Client Record Files

Client records are the property of FamilyWorks and will remain in the building at all times. If a file needs to be transported out of the clinic for some reason, the therapist must follow the guides for transportation of confidential material found on page 27. Each client record file will be retained for a period of seven years from the time of the initial session at the Clinic. After seven years, each client record file will be shredded or destroyed in a manner that completely eradicates all client information.

Fee and Contact History Sheet

Everything that you do concerning a client must be documented. This means that if, for instance, you see a client once, then he doesn't show up for subsequent scheduled sessions—your Fee and Contact Sheet should show not only entries for the dates of the no-show sessions, it should also show the dates of every single attempted and successful telephone call that you made to the family/client. This sheet should show a history, so that someone reading the file should be able to track every single contact that you had with the client. Your Fee and Contact Sheet might look like this:

Date	Session #	Description of Contact <small>(Session type, phone calls, hours, etc.)</small>	Previous Balance	Paid Today	Unpaid Balance
2/3/2016	1	Family Session, 1hr	$0	$2.00	$0
2/9/2016		Phone call, T → C, .25hrs	$0	$0	$0
2/10/2016		No Show – Family Session	$0	$0	$0
2/20/2016		Phone call, T → C; No answer	$0	$0	$0
2/23/2016		Phone call, T → C; No answer	$0	$0	$0
2/26/2016		No Show – Family Session	$0	$0	$0
2/26/2016		Phone call, T → C; No answer	$0	$0	$0

As you can see, a quick read of this sheet gives the reader a fairly clear linear storyline of the general course of therapy. That is exactly what is needed.

One last point: Regardless of whether you speak to a client or not, if an entry is documented on the “Fee and Contact History” Form, it must have a corresponding note within the body of the case notes. If a therapist places a call to a client, there must be documented, regardless of whether the therapist spoke with the client. For example:

Date	Description of Contact (Session type, phone calls, hours, etc.)
6/9/2019	Phone call, T → C, .25hrs

The corresponding note would be:

June 9, 2019, 1:00pm, Phone Call, Jill T, Jack C-----
(T) called (C) to confirm appointment scheduled for February 10, 2011 at 5:30pm. (C) did not answer so (T) left a message. Jill Fable, MFT Intern -----

Documenting Telephone Calls

Document ALL telephone calls in two places:

- List the call on the Fee and Contact sheet indicating whether it was T to C or C to T
- Write a short case note about the call.

This includes attempted calls for which you were unable to leave a message and during which you did not talk to the client ear-to-ear, in which case the call will be notated on the F & C sheet and the case note may look like this.

February 9, 2020, 1:00pm, Phone Call -----
(T) called (C) to confirm appointment scheduled for February 10, 2016 at 5:30pm. (C) did not answer so (T) left a message. Nicole Alers, MFT Intern -----
---

You do not have to document calls from the client when the client does not manage to reach you. For example, if your client calls the clinic asking to speak with you and the SM passes that message on to you, you do not need to write a note saying the client attempted to reach you. However, when you return that call later that day or the next, the note should reflect that you are returning the clients' call to you:

February 9, 2020, 1:30pm, Phone Call -----
(T) returned (C)'s call to confirm appointment scheduled for February 10, 2016 at 5:30pm. (C) answered and confirmed. Nicole Alers, MFT Intern -----
-----

If the client calls you and you are here to take the call, you will document that like any regular phone call.

February 9, 2020, 1:45pm, Phone Call -----
(C)'s called to check in with (T) about upcoming appointment scheduled for February 17, 2016 at 5:30pm. (T) was in clinic and took the call. (T) and © discussed session and agreed to move Back the session to 6:30pm. Nicole Alers, MFT Intern -----

The result of documenting phone calls in two places is that each file should show (and file reviewers should find) a direct correspondence in number between case note entries about calls and Fee & Contact Record phone call entries. So, if, over the course of working with a client, you placed 25 phone calls, that client file will have 25 case note telephone-related entries, and your F & C sheet will have 25 telephone-related lines.

Collecting and Documenting Fees

FamilyWorks is not a free clinic. Your orientation toward fees should be that everybody pays something, even if it is only a dollar or two. We are not a donation-only clinic. FW does charge fees to the general public. Although FamilyWorks has a policy that no one is turned away based on inability, a fee of $0 should be a last, not a first, resort. Pull out the sliding fee schedule, tell the client what he or she will be paying based on the scale and, if necessary, go down from there. FamilyWorks has established specific guidelines for the payment and collection of client fees. They are as follows:

1. A fee for service is charged to each client based on a published sliding fee scale (Appendix A), which is based on clients' gross income and the number of people in the home. Exceptions to this rule apply to institutions whose clients truly can pay nothing, such as LAMP clients, who are referred to us from the local homeless shelter. They are always seen without charge. The list of no-fee institutions includes the following:
  - LAMP
  - DJJ clients
  - Partnership for Health
  - VSU students, faculty, and staff
  - Wire Grass Technical College
  - Georgia Military College
  - Military Personnel and military family members
  - Referrals from Victims Advocacy
2. Whenever possible, the GA/shift manager will discuss and set fees with clients during the intake conversation or before the first session. The GA/shift manager will indicate the client fee on the Intake Form.
3. At the beginning of the initial session, the therapist should discuss the fee with his or her client, confirm that the established dollar amount is within client's means, and inform them that payment is expected at the end of each therapeutic session.
4. Services are never to be withheld because of an inability to pay. If clients cannot afford the fee established for their income and household, the fee can be adjusted at the discretion of the therapist.
5. The payment methods we accept are check or cash. Checks should be made out to the Family Therapy Foundation.
6. Once the therapist and client are in accord about the fee, the therapist will write the fee in the appropriate place in the Therapy Agreement and Informed Consent form.
7. The client must then read and sign the Therapy Agreement and Informed Consent form.

8. Faculty members often carry a small caseload. If a fee is collected from clients seen by faculty members, the fee is collected and deposited in the same manner as clients seen by student therapists.

Documenting Fee Payments

FamilyWorks therapists will keep a record of any payment made for therapeutic services. The procedure for ensuring that the payment of fees is properly documented is as follows:

1. A receipt from the carbon copy receipt book is to be filled out for all monies accepted from clients. The amount paid (and any balance due) is recorded on the appropriate line, and the therapist signs the receipt.
2. Make sure a receipt is written in the receipt book.
  - White copy - goes to the client
  - Yellow copy – fold with money and put in payment box
  - Pink copy – stays in receipt book
3. Document the amount paid on the Fee and Contact History sheet, which is the top-most form on the right-hand side of each client file. Documentation will include sessions where no money was received (indicate a payment of $0.00), cancellations, rescheduled appointments, and no-shows (clients failed to appear for a scheduled appointment). Carry forward any remaining balance. Please note: Clients are charged for their session if they fail to give advance notice that they are unable to attend.

If a therapist closes a file while a balance remains due, a letter is to be sent to the family. (See Appendix B for example letters.)

Online Payments

FamilyWorks utilizes an online payment tool to collect electronic payments. Electronic payments may require the transmission of personal and financial information. We may use and disclose information, such as the client's name, to process payment for services. VSU treats your personal and financial information with the utmost confidentiality, and it will only be disclosed for the above-stated purposes.

Billing

Under Georgia law, student therapists who are not licensed may not bill insurance or represent themselves as independent providers. Student therapists are not permitted to obtain NPI numbers or enroll as billing providers with third-party payers. All services by student therapists must be provided under supervision and cannot be billed directly to insurance under the student's name or the supervisor's name. The clinic offers reduced-fee private pay services by student therapists. Clients must be informed via the Program website and informed consent that:

- services are provided by graduate students under supervision.
- these sessions cannot be submitted to insurance for reimbursement.

Depositing Fees

FamilyWorks strives for accurate documentation of all monetary transactions. Receipts and cash payments are reconciled once a month. The Clinical Coordinator or designee is assigned the task of taking checks, cash, and receipts from the money box, investigating and correcting any discrepancies, and depositing the money into the Family Therapy Foundation fund. A record of all client monies are retained by the Clinical Coordinator and the Foundations office.

Cancellation and No-Show Policies

A cancellation is when the client calls to cancel an appointment by leaving a message or talking directly to someone (the therapist, or a GA/shift manager). A no-show is when clients do not show up for their appointments without any notification that they will not be attending. The following guidelines constitute the procedure that therapists are to follow when clients cancel or do not show up for their appointments. If you feel that your client warrants special consideration in the case of cancellations and no-shows, discuss your concerns with your supervisor.

Date	Session #	Description of Contact (Session type, phone calls, hours, etc.)	PreviousBalance	Paid Today	Unpaid Balance
4/9/2020	3	No show	$0	$0	$0

The corresponding note would be:

Cancellation Policy

1. After three cancellations, the client's file will be closed, so that another client can fill the vacant slot. However, before doing so, the therapist should call the client and discuss the missed appointments. It would be appropriate for the therapist to explain the FW cancellation policy with the client at this time.
2. Document the phone conversation in the case record and on the Contact and Fee Record.

Documenting Cancellations

Cancellations must be recorded in three places.

1. The Contact and Fee Record.
2. A brief case note written documenting the telephone call.
3. In the Scheduling Book, a red "C" over the client's appointment time.

No-Show Policy

1. After three no-shows, a client's file should generally be closed.
2. After the first no-show, the therapist should call the client and discuss the missed appointment.
3. If the client does not show up a second time and does not call the therapist beforehand to explain, the client's file will be closed so that another client can fill the vacant appointment slot. However, before doing so, the therapist should call the client and discuss the missed appointments or write a letter documenting the end of therapy.
4. Whenever a therapist wants to close a client's case but has been unable to reach him or her by phone to inform him or her of this, the therapist will send a letter to the client noting that his or her file has been closed.

Documenting No-Shows

No-shows must be recorded in 2 places.

1. On the Contact and Fee Record in the case file.
2. In the Scheduling Book, a red "C" over the client's appointment time

Writing Case Notes

All therapeutic activity must be clearly noted in case notes. At the end of every therapy or consultation session, whether conducted at the client's home or at the Clinic, and for each phone call that is therapeutic in nature, therapists are required to write a case note.

Case notes forms can be found in the clinic filing room (which is located in a room at the back of the break room) in a filing cabinet labeled forms. Case notes and all client-related material are kept in client files, and the files are kept in the records filing cabinet located in the Clinic Filing room.

1. Case notes must be completed within 24 hours of the session. Faculty supervisors will monitor students case note activity.
2. If you make a mistake while writing the case note, draw a single line through the error, and place your initials and the date of the correction above the line. Do not use white out. Do not scratch the error out with heavy pen. Do not erase the error or make it in any way illegible.
3. All case notes must be written in black or blue ink; black ink preferred.
4. All case notes must be legible. The writers of illegible paperwork will be asked to rewrite their notes.
5. Leave no blank lines and cross off the unused bottom of the page.

The header of your case note should begin with a full date (month, date, year), followed by the session time, length of session and type of session. Those who were present for the session, therapists and clients, must also be listed in the header. As seen in the example above, symbols (T) and © should be used to indicate who the therapist and clients are in the session.

The body of your case note should reflect an outline of the session. Specifically mention your impressions of the client, your working hypotheses and/or understanding of the client's dilemma, and progress made toward goals.

The footer of the case note will briefly touch on any plans that you and your client have decided on for the next scheduled session, as well as tasks that need to be completed between session – either by the therapist(s) or client(s). You will also indicate the date (month, day, year) and time of the next session. All case notes must be signed by the therapists who saw the client(s), with your degree and or title following your signature.

Finally, document on the Fee and Contact form that a session was held, including any amount of money that was or was not collected and the duration of the session. The description of the type of session will be Family, Individual, or Couple.

Concluding Therapy

If a client does not show up for a session or two, therapy does not simply stop. Ethical and safe legal practice dictates that therapists try to contact the client/family in an effort to find out where they stand, perhaps even encourage them to take a break from therapy and return later. Each telephone attempt should be documented on the Contact and Fee Record and a brief note written in the case file. If all attempts to reach the family fail, the therapist will write a final note describing this. Example:

01/02/18 Despite numerous attempts to reach the Bush home, I have been unable to speak with anyone. The family has not returned my phone calls, and I received no response to the letter sent one month ago. I am closing the file at this time.

Then, document “Case closed” on the Contact and Fee Record and the date of your note.

When efforts to speak directly with the client fails, the therapist should always send a letter documenting closure to the current therapy and inviting the family to return in the future (see example letters, Appendix B). Place a copy of the letter in the client file.

If therapy concludes as part of a last session, write the usual case note describing the last session, and include in the note the nature of the therapeutic conclusion. Example:

We discussed the ways therapy has (or has not) been helpful and the changes that George has made. We agreed that further sessions are unnecessary. I invited George to return to the FamilyWorks, if he wishes at any time in the future. Case closed.

Then, document the case closure on the Contact and Fee Record.

If therapy concludes as part of a telephone or in-person contact, write a case note that summarizes the conversation and note the nature of the case termination. Example:

I placed a call to Ernestine Hemingway. We agreed that since he has missed the last 2 sessions, he may wisely be recognizing that he is finished with her therapeutic work. I invited Ernestine to return to the FamilyWorks if he wishes at any time in the future to do further therapeutic work. Case closed. Then, document the case closure on the Contact and Fee Record.

Closing Case Files

When a case file is closed, a graduate assistant checks the file to ensure that accurate and complete clinical and financial records have been maintained. If deficiencies remain, the file will be returned to the student for correction and completion. MFT faculty/staff will not sign off on the client contact portion of a student’s Graduation Checklist until his or her files are complete and up to date.

The end of treatment is defined as the point at which the therapist is certain that the client will no longer be returning to therapy. Most often, this is the date of the client’s last scheduled appointment. However, there are circumstances in which the date that the file is closed is different than the date of the last session. For example, a client may cancel a session, then not show up for one or more rescheduled sessions. Despite efforts to contact the client, the therapist is unable to do so. In such cases, the therapist must send a letter telling the client that his file is being closed. This serves as formal documentation announcing the end of the therapeutic relationship. Establishing a specific date that the therapeutic relationship ended protects you from legal responsibility should the client, for example, commit suicide. If the therapist is able to talk directly with the client by phone, this conversation, once documented, also serves as formal announcement of the end of the therapeutic relationship. Then, the therapist writes a case note documenting his or her efforts to contact the client and stating that the file will be closed since no further contact has been made. The date that this note is written is the closed file date THAT you document and how you document the fact that you are no longer seeing a client is important. You don't want to be caught getting sued by a client's family because she committed suicide after you saw her two times, then never showed up again. In such a scenario, the law would likely consider that you were still, in fact, her therapist, even if you did not consider yourself to be. The way the law does NOT consider you to still be her therapist is when the court sees a documentation in the file indicating that you haven't seen the client for a while and that you have closed the file.

This does not mean that every file closing requires a letter. If you had a phone conversation with your client in which it was overtly discussed that therapy was finished, terrific. Document the phone call on the Fee and Contact sheet, write a note summarizing the essence of the phone call (that you both agreed therapy is finished), and you're good to go.

When a client file is ready to be closed (whatever the reason—the client is finished or no longer interested in therapy, a frequent no show, has moved or died, or doesn't feel therapy is helping), here is the procedure by which a client file is closed.

Step 1 – Therapist Checks File

The therapist checks over the client file for accuracy and thoroughness by completing the Closed Case Checklist form. He then leaves the Closed Case Checklist form on the right side of the client file and puts the entire file in the drawer labeled recently closed (Filing cabinet #6).

Step 2 – File Master Checks File

The Graduate Assistant functioning as our File Master will then review the client file that the therapist has just closed, going through the file carefully looking for missing signatures, case note entries, or discrepancies. The File Master will find that either no further corrections are needed or more corrections are necessary.

Step 3 – No Corrections Needed

When the File Master discovers that no further corrections are needed, he or she moves the file to the Reviewed Drawer and enters data into the closing file Qualtrics survey, formally closing out the file. He or she then moves the file to the Entered Drawer and makes a permanent label for the file. After making a permanent label, the file is ready to be filed alphabetically in the appropriate closed case filing cabinet (Cabinets 1, 2, or 3). The client's case is then formally and completely closed.

Step 4 – If Corrections Are Needed

If the File Master finds mistakes in the file, he or she attaches a Notice of Deficiency (below) to the file and returns the case file to the therapist's mailbox folder (Cabinet 5). The therapist will have 5 working days to make corrections to the file.

Step 5 – If the Therapist Makes Corrections Within 5 Days

The therapist completes the corrections within 5 working days and again places the file in the recently closed file drawer. The File Master again reviews the file to assure that the corrections have indeed been made. If so, Step 3 is followed.

Step 6 – If the Therapist Fails to Make Corrections Within 5 Days

Before this step occurs, the File Master will put complete an Active File Checklist, indicating what is missing or needs to be corrected. The file is then put back in the Therapist's drawer. If the corrections are not made after the Active File Checklist has been placed in the therapist's file in their folder the following will occur.

If the file is not corrected within 5 days, the File Master sends a formulaic email (see email – Case File Deficiencies Remain Outstanding After 5 Days) to the therapist informing her or him that the 5 day window has closed and 3 additional working days, excluding holidays, are now the window within which the file must be corrected. This email is copied to the therapists' immediate supervisor and the Clinical Coordinator. If the file is corrected within the 3 days, Steps 2 and 3 are repeated.

Step 7 – The Therapist Fails to Make Corrections Within the 3 Days

The File Master turns the matter over to the therapist's immediate supervisor, who may consult with the Clinical Coordinator and/or other faculty. The inability to demonstrate that he or she is able to follow clinic policy in a timely manner will be noted on the student's practicum evaluation (see Practicum I criteria, Follow clinic policy (paperwork, follow-up, confidentiality, legal, and/or referral issues, etc.)).

Notice of Deficiency

Subject: Client File Deficiency Dear Therapist,

A review of your case file(s), completed on [insert some date], found that some corrections are necessary. I've placed the file(s) back in your student mailbox. Please re-check the file(s) before [insert some date], which is 5 working days from the review date, and return the file to the Newly Closed—Need to Transfer cabinet (Cabinet #6). Then please send me an email letting me know that you re-reviewed the file and that it is ready for my re-review.

Thank You for your expeditious attention to this matter, Your Ever Loving Colleague and File Master.

Case File Deficiencies That Remain Outstanding After 5 Days

Subject: Email Informing Therapist that Case File Deficiencies Remain Outstanding Dear

Therapist:

This email is a friendly reminder that you have one or more case file deficiencies that remain outstanding. The 5 day window within which the file(s) needed to be corrected has expired. With this email, you have an additional 3 days to complete the file(s) after which the policy dictates that I turn the matter is turned over to faculty.

Thank you again for attending to this important matter, Your friendly and Ever-Hopeful File Master.

Transferring Cases to a New Therapist

The program maintains a written policy that outlines the transfer of cases from one therapist to another. Please see the section “Transferring Clients” in the Policy on Practicum and Internship located on the MFT website.

Reopening Cases

When a family, couple, or individual who has seen a FamilyWorks therapist at a previous time and wishes to return to the FamilyWorks, the following procedure will be followed:

- The return will be treated as if it is a completely new record.
- The GA/shift manager will complete another intake with the client, filling out a new Intake Sheet.
- A new file will be generated, and a new case number will be assigned.
- Clients must fill out a new Background Information Sheet.
- All participating clients (over 18 years of age) must read and sign a new Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent as well as any necessary ROI’s
- Pull the client’s original file from the Closed Files drawer in the filing cabinet located in the Clinical Filing Room and review it.
- Note in the first case note that the client is returning. Indicate the name and case number of the original file.

Case File Security

To ensure file security and maintain confidentiality, all case files are to be stored in the client file room at FamilyWorks Clinic. Interns are not to take client files out of FamilyWorks Clinic for any reason other than court appearances.

Digital Recording Security

VALT, the FamilyWorks video recording system, is compliant with HIPAA Privacy and HIPAA Security Rules, which require covered entities to maintain reasonable and appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards for protecting electronic personal health information (ePHI). The only ePHI that is electronic are our actual sessions, which are temporarily recorded and electronically viewed. Specifically, the VALT system accomplishes what HIPAA Covered Entities are required to do, which are:

- ensure the confidentiality, integrity of all ePHI that is created
- identify and protect against reasonably anticipated threats to the security or integrity of the information;
- protect against reasonably anticipated, impermissible uses or disclosures; and
- ensure student compliance

Students have 24/7/365 access to VALT, which allows secure observation of live sessions from FamilyWorks computers only, which are located in private areas within the clinic. Students cannot download sessions without faculty permission and oversight.

The Program neither bills insurance nor keeps client case notes on computers—all are written by hand. No client information is transmitted electronically. We only keep an electronic scheduling book on the shared OneDrive, but this book does not include identifying client information. Client initials are used in the scheduling book and all communications about clients. We do not use email as a routine means of conversing with or informing clients.

Sessions at FamilyWorks are highly confidential material. At no time, may therapists copy sessions and other confidential material onto flash drives and remove this material from the clinic. All data must remain in the clinic at all times. All recordings remain the property of the MFT program and are not to be used for personal use at home or elsewhere. All digital information is erased once the therapist is finished with them.

Client Rights/Grievances

All FamilyWorks services will be provided to clients with competence and respect, without discrimination based on race, color, religion, creed, national origin, gender, age, disability, marital or veteran status, sexual orientation, or any other legally protected status.

Client Request to Review File

Clients have a right to see the content of their files. FamilyWorks will provide clients with reasonable access to their clinical record:

1. Talk with your supervisor before granting the request.
2. Find a secure and private area—a session room, for example—and sit with the client, providing explanation and clarity when it is requested or necessary. If either the student or the faculty supervisor deems it beneficial, he or she may join this meeting.
3. If the client disagrees with any of the record's content, the clients desired corrections can be added in the form of amendments to the original entry. Do not change the original entries. Any amendment should state that it has been added at the behest of the client.
4. Copies of all or part of a client record may be given to the client following his or her request.
5. The fee for client case record copies is $.25 per page, payable in advance. If the client is unable to afford copy charges, they can be waived.
6. At the conclusion of the review of the case record with the client, the therapist will write a case note documenting the request to see the file, the date of the review, any relevant points that came from the discussion with the faculty supervisor, and any amendments that were initiated by the client during the review.
7. On the Contact and Fee Record document —File Review and any monies collected.

Written Correspondence and Reports

All written correspondence and reports emanating from FamilyWorks are to be produced in a timely manner on FamilyWorks letterhead and must be of professional quality.

The contents of written correspondence, reports, and legal documents will be reviewed by the student's faculty supervisor until he or she tells the student it is not necessary. Proofread all letters before printing out a final draft. A copy of all correspondence is placed in the client's file.

Special Circumstances and Procedure Information

Child Custody Law in Georgia

Introduction

You may find yourself working with a child whose parents are involved with the courts around child custody or perhaps a divorced parent who brings the child in for therapy. A child under the age of 18 cannot receive services without the informed consent of the parent or guardian (as appointed by the courts). If a divorced or separated parent asks for therapy for his or her child, the therapist must ask questions about legal custody. Before therapy can begin, the therapist must have confidence that he or she knows who has legal custody of the child. If the therapist is unsure or unable to know, he or she must ask the parent to provide a copy of the divorce decree or the court order awarding custody. If the parent requesting therapeutic services has sole custody, the therapist may proceed with therapy. However, if the parent requesting therapy has no custody rights, as determined by a judge, he or she must secure the signature of the sole, legal custodial parent on the Therapy Agreement & Informed Consent before therapy can begin. Whenever possible, the involvement of both parents is encouraged for therapy with a child or children. Custody issues are often complex, and close supervision is important. Keep your supervisor informed about cases where child custody is involved. Parents who seek FamilyWorks services for custody evaluation must be informed that FamilyWorks does not have evaluators on staff and that clinic therapists do not perform custody evaluations.

About Child Custody

Divorce, custody, and visitation disputes may impact a parent or guardian's legal authority to authorize treatment for a minor client. In these situations, clinicians and administrative staff must take steps to ensure that services are initiated and maintained in accordance with applicable custody orders and state law.

1. Collection of Legal Documentation

- Prior to initiating services with a minor client whose parents are divorced, separated, or involved in a custody agreement, student therapists must request and obtain a copy of the most current court order addressing legal custody.
- Documentation must be reviewed before therapy begins.
- All custody documentation must be added to the client's file.

2. Determination of Consent Authority

- Sole Legal Custody:
  - The parent or guardian with sole legal custody is authorized to consent to treatment.
  - Documentation must clearly indicate sole legal custody and decision-making authority regarding healthcare.
  - The non-custodial parent may have limited or no authority to authorize treatment or access records unless otherwise stated in the court order.
- Joint Legal Custody:
  - Either parent may typically authorize treatment unless the court order states otherwise.
  - If the order requires consultation, agreement, or shared decision-making regarding healthcare services, therapists must obtain consent from both parents prior to initiating treatment.
  - If the court order is unclear, staff should consult with the Clinical Coordinator prior to scheduling.

3. Ambiguous or Restrictive Court Orders

- If custody documentation requires joint agreement or contains unclear language regarding consent for healthcare decisions, treatment should not be initiated until clarification is obtained.
- The requesting parent may be asked to seek written confirmation from their attorney regarding compliance with the court order.
- In some cases, FamilyWorks Clinic may require consent from both parents as a risk management measure.

4. Disagreement Between Parents

- FamilyWorks therapists should avoid involvement in parental disputes and refer parents back to legal counsel or the court for resolution.

5. Withdrawal of Consent After Treatment Begins

- If both parents initially consent to treatment and one parent later withdraws consent, clinicians must:
  - Review the custody order for guidance regarding termination of services.
  - Consult with the Clinical Coordinator before making any changes to services.
  - Consider whether abrupt termination may negatively impact the minor client's wellbeing.
  - Document all communications regarding withdrawal of consent in the clinical record.
- Continuation of treatment may be appropriate in situations where:
  - The custody order requires joint decision-making for healthcare matters, and
  - One parent continues to support treatment.
- Legal consultation may be sought prior to termination of services to ensure compliance with state law and ethical standards.

6. Documentation Requirements

- All custody-related documentation, parent communications, consent forms, and legal consultations must be documented in the client's record.
- Clinicians should document any concerns regarding authorization for treatment or potential clinical harm related to sudden termination.

FamilyWorks aims to ensure that all services are authorized appropriately while maintaining a primary commitment to the welfare of the minor client and adherence to applicable legal and ethical standards.

Emergency Procedures

All unusual incidents or emergencies, whether or not they involve clients, are to be reported by the student or faculty member involved or student or faculty member who has first-hand knowledge of the incident. FamilyWorks Clinic will follow a standard procedure for incidents:

1. Go to the nearest, safe phone and call the VSU police at 5555. Describe the nature of the emergency.
2. If the emergency is of a medical nature, ask the VSU police to call an ambulance, or call 911 yourself and ask for an ambulance. DO NOT TRANSPORT clients to the emergency room in your own vehicle. They may not be able to access FW via other routes and the EMT's may find locked doors, particularly after hours.
3. Call your current faculty supervisor and ask him or her to help you manage the emergency until help arrives.
4. When the police arrive, let them make determinations regarding jurisdiction.
5. Never attempt to physically restrain a client. Do not transport people on your own.
6. As soon as possible, the faculty supervisor will contact the Clinical Coordinator regarding the incident.

Note: If it is a friend or classmate in need of medical assistance, you would be wise to call an ambulance rather than transport the student on your own. Since you can't necessarily know the nature of the medical problem, you take risks should the student's condition deteriorate during transport (i.e, seizures, convulsions, stop breathing, etc.).

Procedures for Emergency and/or Dangerous Situations

While it is rare, feeling that your physical safety is at risk while in the presence of a client can be a difficult situation. A policy cannot anticipate all possible situations and guarantee your safety.

This means that in such a situation, above all, you must use your best judgment. Here are some guidelines and information to help you think about how you would want to handle a dangerous situation.

1. If two clients are fighting, focus on getting them separated, out of sight of one another. Ask someone to help you, then put each of the fighting parties in any empty room. Do not physically place yourself between two people who are fighting.

If you have reason to believe that you may be going into session with a potentially dangerous client, consider cancelling the session. You must figure out how to tell the client or leave the immediate vicinity to call for help (5555) in a way that best insures your safety. If you decide to proceed with the session, ask another therapist to visually check on you through the one-way mirror in the observation room. Or, ask someone in the clinic to serve as a team member or co-therapist. If you believe another therapist may be in a dangerous situation:

- a. Knock on the door of the session room.
- b. Ask the therapist to step outside.
- c. Discuss what the therapist would like you to do.

If you believe that your client is in danger of harming him or herself or others (including you), or if your client refuses to leave a session at your request, consult with the Clinical Coordinator, faculty or colleagues on hand whenever possible. Call the Clinical Coordinator or your faculty supervisor. If necessary, the campus police at 5555.

Suicide Assessment

While FamilyWorks Clinic is neither an emergency facility nor intended to function as a crisis center, therapists sometimes face crises that may be part of the presenting problem or occur as the therapeutic process develops. Sometimes, the taking of one's own life may appear to be a good solution to a client. A person who states a desire/willingness to attempt suicide should be taken seriously.

Suicidal people sometimes try to get out a message for help. The goal of the therapist is to make alternative means of help readily available.

The client who talks about self-destruction also wants to live, although the balance may be tipped against that desire for the moment. No one is permanently suicidal. People become more suicidal when their perspectives freeze, and their contexts narrow. There are two aspects to a frozen perspective, each of which requires careful exploration with the client for alternatives to coping with a situation, while not denying the real alternative of suicide. Helping the person choose an alternative to suicide reduces the risk that she will die inadvertently. Understanding a suicidal person is the first step in the helping process.

Consider the following when working with a suicidal client:

Stay calm, confident, and seek to make sense of your client's view, just as you would if the topic were not suicide.

- Establish a relationship with the person. Affirm the client for talking with you about this. This is a positive step that suggests that the client may be working hard to stay alive.
- You should already have identified information (telephone number and where the person lives); however, if you are working with someone who walked into the clinic, you may not. When therapeutic timing permits, get as much of this as you can.

FamilyWorks utilizes the following suicide assessment protocol developed by Flemons and Gralnik.

The Risk and Resource Interview Guide

© Douglas Flemons, Ph.D. & Leonard Gralnik, M.D., Ph.D.

When confronted with clients in crisis, we bear responsibility for assessing whether they are in imminent danger of harming themselves or others. However, we are equally responsible for assessing whether they have access to the necessary resources for safely and effectively dealing with the crisis. A clinician who primarily hones in on problems and risk factors may arrive at an unnecessarily pessimistic clinical impression. In contrast, a clinician who primarily focuses on mediating factors and exceptions to problems may fail to grasp the depth of clients' distress and the severity of the danger they are in.

Given the isolating nature of suicidal ideation and actions, it is easy to become narrowly focused on the risks and resources of the individual client. Of necessity, we are always attempting to determine whether the person in front of us is in imminent danger. But to adequately answer this question, we need to attend carefully not only to the individual's unique experiences—thoughts, beliefs, history, emotions, and behaviors—but also to the interplay of these experiences with those of significant others (alive and deceased) in his or her social context. The Risk and Resource Interview Guide (RRIG) guides inquiry into the dangers and potentials in both the interior and the social worlds of clients, providing a means for obtaining the necessary information for making difficult choices regarding hospitalization and the breaking of confidentiality.

No paper-and-pencil assessment device can take the place of a well-conducted clinical interview and well-honed clinical judgment. The evaluation of a patient's risk for suicide should never be based upon a score of a single scale. Rather, a comprehensive assessment should be made (Brown, 2002, p. 37). In keeping with this view, we designed the RRIG as an organizing template for managing clinical interviews, rather than as a checklist to be rigidly followed. It pairs topics of inquiry, cueing the therapist to interweave explorations of risk with explorations of protective factors. We did this in recognition of the fact that no assessment instrument merely gathers information: Neutral questions do not exist. No therapist can make a determination of his or her clients' state of mind without simultaneously influencing to some degree how the client, themselves, are experiencing their situation. Thus, every question asked is not only a tool for collecting data, but also a tool for intervening, for contextualizing and shaping the clients' way of orienting to themselves and what they are facing. A sensitivity to how questions are posed, and an interlacing of risk and resource explorations helps clients not to feel grilled and to potentially recognize options and possibilities that have been escaping their notice.

How the Risk and Resource Interview Guide is Organized

The RRIG is organized in 2 X 2 tables, each of which offers you complementary questions for delving into clients' and their significant others' current or past experiences. It suggests possibilities for how to pose the questions, and, in the accompanying commentary to each table, we provide a rationale for the wording we've used, along with information that can help inform your listening. However, we want to caution you not to use the RRIG in a mechanical fashion, listing off questions one after the other. Instead of keeping the RRIG between you and your clients, we suggest you keep it beside you, drawing from it as a means of unfolding a conversation. If you do this, the content and form of the next question you ask will depend on the answer your clients give to the last one. Because such interactional sensitivity can't be pre-planned, the questions in the tables are not nearly as nuanced as the ones you will ask in your interviews. A client's answer to your first question under a particular topic may render obsolete any subsequent questions listed in the table, or it may require more in-depth questions than those listed.

The topics covered in the RRIG are arranged in approximate order of clinical significance. Although a thorough crisis assessment would almost certainly include an exploration of the first seven or so categories (and perhaps some of the others), it is doubtful that you would need to exhaustively explore every topic before being able to make a sound clinical decision regarding client safety. As soon as you are confident that you have the necessary information to take action—whether to take steps toward hospitalization, to develop a safety plan, or to end the session, knowing the client is safe—you can stop following the guide.

The interactional orientation of the RRIG allows you to pick up on the relationship between your clients and their significant others, as well as the relationship between their despair and their reasons for hope and/or survival. But as you explore these issues, you will also be attending closely to their interaction with you. As you talk with clients in crisis, continually attend to whether they are

- Responding to what you say
- Making eye contact.
- Answering your questions thoughtfully.
- Able to elaborate on answers when you request them to do so.

Stay attuned to clients' interpersonal participation as the following areas are explored.

Appendix

Appendix A - Sliding Fee Scale

At this time, FamilyWorks does not accept Medicare or other forms of third party payment. As an alternative to insurance, we offer a sliding scale fee structure. If a client does not wish to participate in the sliding scale fee structure of FamilyWorks, we will try to refer them/him/her to a place where their insurance coverage can be used. Checks, made payable to Family Therapy Foundation, are preferred.

Appendix B – Sample Letters

These letters are examples of letters that you might find yourself writing on behalf of your clients. Borrow from these examples, if you wish, but make sure that your letters are tailored to your client, i.e., speak to the need of your client, not a generic person. Put all letters on FamilyWorks letterhead and always make a copy to put in the client's file.

Sample One: Verification of Attendance

*****

January 29, 2018

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter at the request of Laura Smith. She and her son, Shawn Donnell, came to the FamilyWorks at Valdosta State University for family therapy beginning November 2011. This letter is to verify that Laura and Shawn have kept each of their scheduled appointments, and they were eager and willing participants in therapy. They did a great deal of important work, and they report that things are much improved at home. They relay that they have experienced a number of successes since they completed therapy. It was pleasure working with the Smith/Donnell family, and we wish them continued success.

If I can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact me at the FamilyWorks at (229) 219-1281. Respectfully,

Barack Obama
Family Therapist in Training

Sample Two: Verification of Attendance

*****

June 13, 2012

Dear Mr. Wolff,

We're sorry to have missed you for your last two appointments at the FamilyWorks. Since we have many families waiting to see therapists here at the FamilyWorks, we are unable to keep this slot open for you. We will close your file at this time; however, we invite you to return at any time, should you wish. Please feel free to call us again (912/219-1281), and your file can be re-opened.

With warm regards,
Dick Cheney,
Family Therapist Intern

Sample Three: Closing File of Client Who No-Showed or Canceled Two or More Times

*****

March 15, 2018

M. L and M. D. street address town, GA, zip Dear M. and M,

It's been several weeks since we've talked, and you and the children have been in my thoughts often. I wonder how your new job is working out, M; how you're dealing with all the demands on your time, M; how your relationship as a couple is progressing; and how B, K, R, and B are doing. We know that people stop therapy for many excellent reasons: You may be done with therapy, sometimes therapy is just not a good fit, sometimes people realize they do not need therapy, and sometimes life is simply too busy. Whatever your reason, it is perfectly fine. We know that your decision is the right one for you, and we trust that things are going well.

I am going to close your file at this time. However, if at any point in the future you wish to speak with us again, please feel free to call the clinic (219-1281), and we would be glad to set up an appointment with you.

We wish you the best. It was a pleasure working with you.

Sincerely, Condeleeza Rice
Family Therapist in Training

Sample Four: Closing File

*****

March 4, 2018

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter at the request of Ms. Tilda Tyson, who came to FamilyWorks Clinic at Valdosta State University for family therapy. The work that Ms. Tyson has done with us was around her concerns with her anger. This letter is to verify that Tilda kept each of her scheduled appointments since January, 2018, and she has been an eager and willing participant in therapy. Tilda has done a great deal of important work, and I can report that matters concerning her anger have improved. It was a pleasure working with Tilda, and we wish her continued success.

If I can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact me at FamilyWorks at (229) 219-1281.

Sincerely,
Paul Wolfowitz and Karl Rove Family Therapy Intern

Sample Five: Closing File

*****

April 15, 2018

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter at the request of Mr. and Mrs. Tttt Xxxxx, who have come to FamilyWorks at Valdosta State University for family therapy. The work that the Xxxxx's are doing in therapy has been aimed at achieving the return of their son, Mmmm, who was removed from their home by the Dept of Family and Children's Services and is currently in foster care.

This letter is to verify that the Xxxxx's have kept each of their scheduled appointments since April 2000, and they have been eager and willing participants in therapy. They have examined a number of important issues regarding the responsibilities as parents, and they have made several good changes in this area.

If I can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact me at FamilyWorks: (912) 2191281.

Sincerely,

Donald Rumsfeld
Family Therapist Intern

Sample Six: Letter to DJJ

*****

November 1, 2018

Dear Ms or Mr. Samuels:

At the request of [person's name], we are writing to confirm that she [or he], has been coming to FamilyWorks. We understand that she is required by the court to attend therapy, and we can verify that [person] has a first session as of March 1, 2014, and we have been seeing her [him] on a weekly basis since that time to discuss the difficulties that resulted in this referral.

In a very short period of time, [person's name] has made significant strides. She has already taken a test using techniques learned in therapy that allowed her to successfully complete the exam and earn a score with which she was much happier. Nonetheless, if there are things that you can do to make the testing situation/circumstances easier for [person's name], we believe that would be of immense help to her as well. [person's name] plans to continue attending therapy, and we will continue to work with her. If we can be of any additional help, do not hesitate to contact us.

Warm Regards,

Jane Austen and Dorothy Brooks, Family Therapy Interns

Scenario: Client calls the clinic because they want to cancel or reschedule their appointment

Client: I have become ill and will not be able to make my 7:00 pm appointment tomorrow. I know the names of my therapists.

SM Message: (Therapist name and Therapist name)'s client called to let them know that they would not be able to make their appointment. Emailed and called Therapist A. Therapist B was in the clinic so I let her know in person. I Left a message for them in the message log that Client would like to reschedule.

Scenario: Client's DFACS caseworker calls for information.

Caller: I am a case worker for DFACS and my clients are attending therapy at FamilyWorks in order to get their children back, who were taken away for allegations of abuse. I want to know if our mutual clients have been attending their sessions and what has been discussed.

SM Message: DFACS worker called regarding information about a client. I let him know that I was not able to confirm or deny whether a client is being seen here. I took the workers info and number as well as the name of the clients about whom he was inquiring and told him that I would pass it along to a supervisor. I contacted Stephen Norris, who took the message. He will search for a file in this clients' name and contact the therapist, asking him or her to contact the DFACS case worker.

Subject: DFACS Worker Called

Good morning. This is shift manager Stefanie Maxwell. DFCS Worker, Mrs. Stevenson called to inquire about a potential client with the initials CL. I let her know that I could not confirm or deny that the client was being seen but that I could take her name and number and have a supervisor call her back. Her phone number is in the message book.

Scenario: Client called for information but can't remember any information about their appointment and their last name is not in the book and you are not able to locate their intake.*

Client: I am a fairly new client. I have been seen only once, and I don't remember my therapists' names. I am calling to see when my next appointment is and the client worker cannot seem to locate it in the book. I can sort of describe my therapist (gender, height, hair color, skin color, and eye color).

SM Message: A client with the initials (Client's initials) called the clinic to confirm her appointment time but there was no appointment scheduled this week with her name. I asked her the name of the clinic at which she attended this first session. She was able to identify FamilyWorks on Patterson Street. I was unable to locate her intake, so I sent an email to all therapists to check the messaging book.

Subject: Client Called

Good morning, therapists! A client initials (CL) called the clinic this morning to confirm her appointment time but there was no appointment in the book with her last name. I was not able to locate her anywhere in the scheduling book or in the intake book. I took her name and phone number down and said that I would have her therapist contact her today. Please view the message book and see if this client belongs to you.
